CIVIC, PROVINCIAL VOTE LISTS CLOSE SATURDAY

Victoria citizens have only one more day to register as voters both for the provincial by-election scheduled for Nov. 24 and the civic elections to be held Dec. 10.

There are two separate voters' lists. Persons who want to vote in both elections must be on both lists.

The place to register as a municipal voter is the city clerk's office at City Hall. Although usually closed on Saturdays, this office will remain open tomorrow from 8.30 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Registration of persons for the provincial by-election can be done at 12 different locations throughout the city, as listed in an advertisement elsewhere in this newspaper.

'TRIUMPH AND TRAGEDY'

U.S. Admiral Opposed Using RN in Pacific

(This is another installment of Volume VI of the war memoirs of Winston Churchill, Britain's Prime Minister. Other installments will be carried daily.)

By WINSTON S. CHURCHILL

On Tuesday, Sept. 5 (1944) we sailed once again from the Clyde in the Queen Mary. All the Chiefs of Staff came with me, and met daily, and sometimes twice a day, during our six-day voyage. I wanted, before meeting our American friends, to harmonize and grip the many plans and projects which were now before us.

In Europe Overlord was not only launched, but triumphant. How, when, and where could we strike at Japan, and assure for Britain an honorable share in the final victory there? We had lost as much, if not more, than the United States. Over 160,000 British prisoners and civilian internees were in Japanese hands. For nearly three years we had persisted in the strategy of "Germany First." The time had now come for the liberation of Asia, and I was determined that we should play our full and equal part in it. What I feared most at this stage of the war what the the United States would say in after years, "We came to your help in Europe and you left us alone to finish off Japan." We had to regain on the field of battle our rightful possessions in the Far East, and not have them handed back to us at the peace table.

Our main contribution must obviously be on the sea and in the air. Most of our Fleet was now free to move eastwards, and I resolved that our first demand on our American Allies should be for its full participation in the main assault on Japan. The Royal Air Force should follow as soon as possible after Germany was defeated.

Warns of Thinking Germany Done

I was by no means certain that Germany would be defeated in 1944. It was true that we had had nearly seven weeks of unbroken military success. Paris was liberated and large areas of France had been cleared of the enemy. Our advance in Italy continued. The Soviet offensive, though temporarily halted, might at any moment surge forward again. Greece would soon be free. Hitler's "secret weapons" were almost mastered, and there was no evidence that he had learned how to make the atomic bomb. All these and many other factors induced a belief in our military circle that the Nazis would soon collapse. But I was not convinced. I remembered the German onslaught in March, 1918. At a meeting of the Chiefs of Staff over which I presided on September 8 I accordingly warned them against basing their plans on an imminent German collapse.

Another matter lay heavy on my mind; I was very anxious to forestall the Russians in certain areas of Central Europe. The Hungarians, for instance, had expressed their intention of resisting the Soviet advance, but would surrender to a British force if it could arrive in time. If the Germans either evacuated Italy or retired to the Alps I much desired that Alexander should be enabled to make his amphibious thrust across the Adriatic, seize and occupy the Istrian peninsula, and try to reach Vienna before the Russians. It seemed much too early to start sending his troops to southeast Asia. The C.I.G.S. agreed that there should be no question of withdrawing any of Alexander's troops until Kesselring had been driven across the Plave.

Agreement Reached on Voyage

As a result of our lengthy talks on the voyage we reached agreement about what we should say to our great ally.

We landed at Halifax on September 10, and reached Quebec the following morning. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt, who were our guests, had arrived just before us, and the President waited at the station to greet me. Once again the Citadel was our home, while the staffs again monopolized the Chateau Frontenac.

On the morning of Wednesday, September 13, we held our first plenary meeting. With me were Brooke, Portal, Cunningham, Dill, Ismay, and Major-General Laycock, who had succeeded Mountbatten as Chief of Combined Operations. The President had with him Leahy, Marshall, King, and Arnold. But this time, alas, there was no Harry Hopkins. He had sent me a telegram just before I left England: "Although I am now feeling much better, I still must take things easy, and I therefore feel that I should not run the risk of a setback in health by attempting to fight the Battle of Quebec on the Plains of Abraham, where better men than I have been killed."

Mr. Roosevelt asked me to open the discussion. I thereupon made a general survey of the war which I had prepared on the voyage. Since our meeting at Cairo the affairs of the United Nations had taken a revolutionary turn for the better. Everything we had touched had turned to gold, and during the last seven weeks there had been an unbroken run of military success.

I was also glad to record that although the British Empire had now entered the sixth year of the war still keeping its position, with a total population, including the dominions and colonies, of only 70,000,000 white people. Our effort in Europe, measured by divisions in the field, was about equal to that of the United States. This was as it should be, and I was proud that we could claim equal partnership with our great ally. Our strength had now reached its peak, whereas our ally's was ever increasing. There was complete confidence in General Eisenhower, and his relations with General Montgomery were of the best, as were those between General Montgomery and General Bradley. The part played by General Bedell Smith in directing and cementing the staffs was of the highest order. An efficient integrated American-British staff machine had been built up, and the battle was being brilliantly exploited.

Blythe Spirit Goes Abroad

The wicked witch who comes calling on Halloween really may be a good fairy in disguise. Instead of asking handouts for themselves, 100 Victoria youngsters will go out collecting for less fortunate children in foreign lands through the Save the Children Fund. Five-year-old Wayne, pictured here, is one of them. He is getting a little early practice with the help of his mother, Mrs. Walter Carter, 1189 Tattersall Drive. (Photo by Irving Strickland.)

INSPIRED BY TIMES STORY

Halloween 'Treats' Will Go to Needy

One hundred Victoria youngsters will be getting a different kind of pleasure from their Halloween rounds Saturday night.

Instead of demanding treats for themselves, they'll be calling for contributions which will make life a little easier for children in other countries who are without good homes, proper clothing and adequate food.

Prompted by a recent article in the Times, telling how children in the eastern United States were putting aside the selfish motive of Halloween and getting more fun through collecting for others, Mrs. W. W. McGill, of the Children's Garden Library, decided the same idea could be introduced here.

Mrs. McGill won ready support from parents she contacted. Children participating in the plan will collect for the "Save the Children Fund." Adults in each district will supervise the collection.

SPREADS OVER WORLD

The Save the Children Fund is a world-wide organization with headquarters in London. It provides help for poorly-clothed and hungry children in 12 countries: Britain, Austria, Germany, Greece, Italy, Syria, Lebanon, France, Malaya, the Sudan, British Somaliland and Korea.

The 100 city youngsters who will be collecting for the fund Halloween night will each carry a properly-marked collection tin, bearing the picture of a sad-looking little girl in a torn dress. The label also carries the words "Save the Children Fund—Please Help" and shows the official motto of the campaign.

SLOGAN IN RHYME

Attached to the bottom of each can will be Mrs. McGill's rhyme:

"Our children need no 'trick or treat,'
Nor do they need for bread;
But there are those with nought to eat—
Let's give to them instead."

Children collecting for the fund will be dressed in traditional Halloween costumes.

PRIZE RULES CHANGED IN CROSSWORD CONTEST

A slight change in the prize rules for the weekly crossword contest, favoring regular subscribers to the Times, goes into effect today. Henceforth the increase of $25 per week in the prize money, when there are no winners, will be added to the bonus for home subscribers instead of to the general prize. See Page 27 for puzzle No. 32 and the new rules.

5 DAYS WITHOUT FRESH MILK

N.Y. Mayor Labels Strike Intolerable

NEW YORK (AP)—Marathon negotiations to end New York's milk strike broke down early today, and Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri, calling the situation "intolerable," immediately called a mediation meeting at city hall for later in the day.

A deadlock in the wage-hour dispute became apparent at 2.30 a.m. EST when representatives of the AFL Teamsters' Union walked out of the bargaining room.

Thursday, on the basis of optimistic statements issued by negotiators, fleets of big milk trucks rolled toward the city, ready to supply fresh milk for 12,000,000 Metropolitan area consumers in New York and Northern New Jersey. They were stopped, however.

The strike began Sunday when 15,000 drivers and plant workers stopped work over their demand for a $15-weekly wage increase and a 35-hour work week instead of 40 hours.

Fresh milk supplies were exhausted almost immediately in retail stores and restaurants. Milk deposits ran out Tuesday, but plenty of powdered and evaporated milk has been available.

Ratify Wheat Pact

CANADA MAY RETALIATE

U.S. Blocks TCA Mexican Service

Unprecedented Ruling Gives Ottawa Concern

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier hinted today that Canada may retaliate against the United States in a squabble concerning operation of a Trans-Canada Air Lines flight to Mexico.

The minister said in a statement that Canadian air transport authorities have "the position of U.S. carriers operating into Canada under review" as a result of a U.S. decision which has forced TCA to cancel plans for the Mexico service.

The new TCA service was scheduled to start Saturday between Montreal, Toronto and Mexico City.

TCA now operates from Montreal and Toronto to Tampa, Fla. It wanted to extend that service to Mexico City. It planned to use the same planes for passengers disembarking at Tampa and for those continuing to Mexico City.

The U.S. civil aeronautics board objected, saying that two types of traffic could not be carried on the one plane. It ruled that TCA should use a separate plane for passengers traveling to Mexico City from Canada and vice versa.

TCA said use of separate planes for flights to Tampa and for flights on to Mexico City would be too costly.

An official of the Canadian air transport board said the U.S. had placed an "unexpectedly strict and literal interpretation" on international air agreements.

He said that at least in one or two instances Canada had been more liberal than the U.S. in granting such air permits.

His department now was reviewing possible parallel cases of U.S. lines operating into or through Canada. One example might be operation of U.S. lines through Edmonton to Alaska.

Mr. Chevrier said this system now is in wide use among international airlines. TCA operated through London and Paris to Dusseldorf, Germany, in this fashion and Air France operated through Montreal to Chicago.

He said he "regretted" the decision of U.S. authorities which had prevented establishment of an international service "which both the Canadian and Mexican governments felt would be in their mutual interests."

By LLOYD BAKER
Times City Editor

MEXICO CITY—Just what effect the U.S. ruling against Trans Canada Airlines' new Mexico service will have upon the new Canadian Pacific Air Lines route from Vancouver to Lima was uncertain today.

Traffic on the new TCA line to Mexico City would presumably be available for the Mexico City-Lima hop of the CPAL service. If the TCA link is halted it would affect CPAL business. However, until the matter is further clarified, officials here of both companies are not making any comment.

'NO BARS' DRIVE STARTS NEXT WEEK

Public Meeting To Be Called

First major step toward petitioning for a local-option liquor plebiscite here and organizing support for a "no" vote will be taken by the Greater Victoria Citizens' Association next week, M. F. Hunter, president of the association, announced today.

A public meeting to discuss the new provincial liquor act will be held Thursday, Nov. 5, at 8 p.m., in Central Baptist Church.

Mr. Hunter earlier announced the association's intention of campaigning for signature by 35 per cent of the citizens to force a local option vote.

The new act provides that where such votes are held 55 per cent of those voting must say "yes" before new oulets, as allowed by the act, may be established.

LICENSE AREA

Mr. Hunter said he viewed with great concern an indication given Thursday by Attorney General Robert Bonner that in Vancouver, the downtown area, known provincially as Vancouver Centre, might be constituted as a separate licensing area. (See page 13.)

"We are against subdivision of municipal territory in deciding licensing areas," he said. "In the case of Vancouver, if only the heart of the city was made a licensing area, the great majority of people who live in that city would not have a chance to vote on whether they favored liquor outlets or not. The people with property in the city centre might stand to gain financially so the vote would be decided by special interests.

"We say if new liquor outlets are proposed for any city or municipality, all the people in that city or municipality should be given an opportunity to express their views through balloting. That is the only way to allow a true expression of opinion."

Hearings Open

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet today opened private hearings on the application by Canadian Pacific Airlines for a license to fly scheduled air cargo flights from Montreal to Vancouver via The Pas., Man., and Edmonton.

PEACE PRIZES, FOR MARSHALL, SCHWEITZER

OSLO (AP) — The Norwegian Nobel Institute announced tonight that Albert Schweitzer, Alsatian humanist and medical missionary, has been awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for 1952. Former U.S. state secretary Gen. George C. Marshall has been awarded the prize for 1953.

Schweitzer, 78, lives in French equatorial Africa where he operates a world-famed hospital for natives, which he built with his own money, obtained as fees for world tours as a violinist.

BCE Talks More Hopeful

VANCOUVER (BUP) — The only new word today on the B.C. Electric Co. wage dispute with its electrical employees comes from George Gee, business manager of the IBEW. He said that "the situation definitely looks more hopeful."

The 600 IBEW members have voted to walk out if their demands for a 10 per cent pay boost are not met. A strike of the company's electricians would tie up industry.

The union negotiating committee was scheduled to meet with B.C. Electric president Dal Grauer again today.

Bennett Labels Johnson's Attack On Socred Debt Claims 'Ridiculous'

Former premier Byron Johnson's denunciation of the Social Credit government's debt reduction claims was a "straight political" statement apparently issued because of the coming Victoria by-election, Premier W. A. C. Bennett charged today.

In a statement from Kelowna, he said Mr. Johnson's claims are "ridiculous."

Mr. Johnson said last week the so-called Social Credit pay-as-you-go policy and claimed debt reductions of $34,000,000 were made possible through the sound financial policy of the previous government.

The premier said:

"In the former premier's last budget speech on March 4, 1952, he said net debt of B.C. was $191,000,000 and on page 29 of the same budget address it states expenditures for capital purposes from borrowing was $28,350,000.

"My statement that the net debt is now $156,000,000, with a net reduction of $34,000,000 is correct, and it has nothing to do with the sinking funds on hand as stated by the former premier.

"As everyone knows the net debt, and that is what we are talking about, is the gross debt less all sinking funds on hand.

"It is equally ridiculous for Mr. Johnson to say that we use the hospital insurance fund which he says amounted to $3,000,000 to make the reduction in net debt.

"The hospital insurance fund is still intact and it was much larger March 31 last than the amount of $3,000,000 which Mr. Johnson mentioned in his statement as being on hand under the old Liberal government.

"Now Mr. Johnson is again dealing in political matters, perhaps he can explain why his old Liberal government did not file a statement on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway with the Legislature.

"Why the old government kept many orders-in-council under a confidential file and how the present government, despite the fact labor costs are higher than under his government, is securing better figures on highway contracts.

"When I speak in the Victoria by-election I will deal fully with the large increase in debt that came about during the Johnson administration.

"I want to repeat that the early days of coalition under Hon. John Hart there was good government even though the present Liberal Leader Arthur Laing was quoted as saying the coalition government was the second worst in B.C.'s political history."

Advised of Premier Bennett's reply today ex-Premier Johnson said he is preparing a series of articles dealing categorically with just what the financial situation of the province was when he left office. First of these will be issued tomorrow.

Hush! Vancouverite Tells Us How

Victoria Still Has Plenty of Opportunities Left, He Says

(Victoria, in the last half-century, may have lost out on the dream it once had to become a great commercial and industrial centre of the Pacific Coast. But that doesn't mean it hasn't great opportunities for development. This is the conclusion of Roy Brown, one of B.C.'s senior journalists. He sums it up in his column in The Vancouver Sun, reprinted herewith).

By ROY BROWN

Victoria Chamber of Commerce wishes to revive the pioneer commercial supremacy of their city. They're starting about 50 years late.

Victoria was a great place—indeed before Vancouver was even heard of. Trading firms which enjoyed international reputations did business there. Robert Ward & Co. helped to establish the first bank, the Bank of B.C. Turner, Beaton & Co. set up branches in Alberni and Nelson. R. P. Rithet & Co. controlled a remunerative business in sealing. Charlie Todd was the first of the great salmon packers. Somehow in the next generation nobody appeared on the scene to take their places.

It was a pet theory of the late Chris Spencer that Victoria took the wrong turning at Confederation. Chris was in favor of full co-operation with Commonwealth aspirations, but he felt Vancouver Island could have existed better by itself, remaining a Crown colony or becoming a separate province, establishing Victoria as a world free port, a manufacturing centre for Oriental goods, in commerce a rival of San Francisco.

* * *

But Victoria seemed always to be let down. In the deal preceding Confederation was an implied understanding for construction of a trans-continental railway that would have its western terminus in Victoria. Even today you may read the occasional hopeful reference to a connection by bridge at Ripple Rock with a Mainland line at Bute Inlet, an impossible scheme as far as practical enterprise is concerned.

When the government of B.C. made a deal for extension of the Canadian Northern, an integral part of the plan was a line of magnificent steamers from Steveston to Victoria. Another project that did not come off. What Victoria did make sure of, in the late nineties, was to anchor the legislative buildings in the Island capital. If this had not happened, Victoria would now be a quiet town of perhaps 30,000.

Today, this early promise of great commercial prosperity cannot be regained. But Victoria has some very interesting alternatives by which to achieve a very substantial growth. I suggest three proposals, as reasonable and fairly sensible.

First, Victoria must realize its objective and mission as a Greater Victoria. The city is small and restricted, with thousands of people earning their living in downtown areas, but making little contribution to the real Victoria because they reside beyond its boundaries.

Second, a studied development of the magnificent suburb of Saanich, where the key to progress is irrigation. Only if tackled by the entire community of Greater Victoria can the money be spent to bring ample water to the lovely areas of Saanich. Hundreds of small farms could be set up on lands now too parched to grow anything. The absurd business of Victoria having to import its milk supply in large measure from the Fraser Valley would be ended.

Third, construction of a great scenic highway to open the West Coast of the Island. Topographically it may be far too expensive to follow the coastline closely, but a few miles inland, parallel to the Pacific beach, there could be constructed a highway through a great forest and lake country to join with the present roads at Alberni. This is almost as necessary comparatively to Victoria as the Fraser Canyon Highway or the Hope-Princeton road is to Vancouver. It would double Victoria's annual tourist traffic.

Them U.S. airline fellers better remember thet whut's sauce fer th' goose, in Mexico, may also be sauce fer th' Gander, in Newfoundland.

So used t' hearin' knocks at th' door from census takers, enumerators, election candidates, collectors an' others, prob'ly won't even notice a ghost or two t'morrow night.

B.C. Municipalities Demand Larger Cut of Liquor Profits

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's municipalities today demanded the provincial government give the ma larger cut of liquor profits to help pay for enforcement costs brought about by the misuse of liquor.

Demand was made at the annual convention here of Union of B.C. Municipalities.

Delegates passed a resolution asking for a share of liquor profits because "the cost of law enforcement wholly provoked by the sale of liquor falls on the municipalities.

"This principle has been recognized in the past, but in the last few years municipalities have been ignored," stated the resolution which was presented by the city council of Prince Rupert.

The provincial government is to be asked to allocate to municipalities profits from the sale of liquor "proportionate to the burden borne by the municipalities in law enforcement occasioned by the misuse of government liquor."

SATURDAY? MAYBE . . . BUT THEN, SHUCKS, YOU FIGURE IT OUT

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The questioning of anti-Red war prisoners by Communist brainwashers may be resumed Saturday or there may be a new blow-up in the increasingly explosive situation.

Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, Indian chairman of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission, said that the 7,800 anti-Red North Korean prisoners had agreed to face Communist questioners who will try to get them to go home.

But he added that the North Koreans had made certain demands about procedure, that the commission had rejected them and that he could not be sure the questioning would really start.

Shortly afterward, the Communists suddenly called a meeting of the Military Armistice Commission for 3 p.m. Saturday.

Accidents 'Not Acts of God' E & N Railway Head Claims

Nine out of 10 so-called accidents are not accidents at all, D. C. Hartley, general manager of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway, told Victoria Rotary Club in Empress Hotel at noon Thursday.

"They are not acts of God," he said, "but the direct result of a vicious chain of circumstances set in motion by someone who, because he has not been properly informed in the matter, does not realize his error; or by the far greater majority who know they are taking a chance."

Accidents have been proved to be far more vicious than war, he said. "If it's a tie, you lose. The chance-taker has a 50-50 possibility of coming out unharmed and alive."

Mr. Hartley pointed out far more people are killed or injured on the street or in their own homes than in all forms of industrial circles," he said. "Unfortunately, however, it seems impossible to get the average worker to apply to time spent in traffic and at home the life-preserving principles and practices acquired on the job."

Speaking specifically of accidents at railway grade crossings, Mr. Hartley said an average of $250,000 each would be required to eliminate the 33,000 grade crossings in Canada.

A plan to eliminate all level-crossings would be economically impossible, and the resulting tax bill would bankrupt the country, he said.

He said that about two out of five crossing accidents occur at protected crossings. "In fact, in three out of 10 accidents, the car or truck runs into the side of the train."

Mr. Hartley appealed to motorists to use the same care at level crossings as he would at the average unprotected city intersection—look both ways before crossing.

Red China Waves New Peace Feeler At Japanese

TOKYO (AP) — Red China waved a peace feeler at Japan today after signing a $84,000,000 trade pact with an unofficial mission of Japanese legislators.

But the Communists insisted that Japan break with Nationalist China and the United States.

Peiping radio said Chinese Vice-Premier Kuo Mo-jo told the Japanese that "normal relations," a peace treaty, and even a non-aggression pact "is quite within the scope of consideration."

The Communist move has long been anticipated since Peiping this spring started sending back about 30,000 Japanese held in China since 1945. It appeared obvious that the twin moves are aimed at splitting Japan from the U.S.

Greenlease Indictments May Come in Today

Bennike Silent On Death Threats

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Arab delegates said Thursday Maj.-Gen. Vagn Bennike, United Nations truce supervisor in Palestine, and some of his observer staff had been threatened with death by Israelis.

Charles Malik, Lebanese delegate on the security council, then formally asked Bennike whether he or any of his men had been threatened.

Bennike told the council he wanted time to consider this question and others asked him by several delegates. He told a reporter after the council adjourned for the day that he had nothing to say about himself but that it was commonly known he had bodyguards in the Holy Land.

Mid-Air Collision at Penhold Kills Dane

EDMONTON (BUP)—The air force today identified the victim of a mid-air collision between two planes over the Penhold airport as Flight Cadet Jorgen Andersen of the Royal Danish Air Force.

His home town was listed as Nykobing, Denmark. Andersen was training at Penhold under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization training plan.

Flying solo Tuesday, he collided with a plane carrying an instructor and a student as the two planes were coming in for a landing. Both planes crashed, but the instructor and second student escaped unharmed.

Queen Refuses Favorite Soda; Too Many Cameras

WASHINGTON (UP)—Queen Frederika of Greece finally got that much-publicized chocolate soda. But she didn't drink it.

The vivacious queen frequently has told visitors to Greece how much she looked forward to visiting the United States and having an hones-to-goodness chocolate soda.

But when one was served her at lunch given by capital newsmen and newswomen Thursday she declined it. The queen explained "it's better to drink sodas in private."

An attendant explained that the queen dislikes being photographed while eating, which would have been inevitable if she had consumed the soda.

TRAGIC END TO SLAVING

Father, Ailing Son Die In California Air Crash

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—A Hungarian watchmaker's years of efforts to find a cure for his polio-stricken son came to a tragic end in the crash of an airliner near San Francisco Thursday.

Janos Feher and his seven-year-old son, John, both died in the disaster as they flew toward New York and the polio treatments which Feher had slaved for years to finance.

Since emigrating to Australia in 1949, Feher had consistently worked hours of overtime daily and had finally sold almost all his possessions to raise money for the specialized New York treatments which he was told were his son's only hope of recovery.

His widow was receiving government aid today in making arrangements to fly immediately to the scene of the crash.

UBCM Delegates Prod Martin With BCHIS Compulsion Issue

VANCOUVER — Health Minister Eric Martin light-footed over a sizzling griddle at the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention here Thursday as delegates fired "hard-to-answer" questions at him.

The touchy spot was the compulsory aspect of the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

Delegates repeatedly asked Mr. Martin — and sometimes heckled him — if hospital insurance is compulsory only to the man on a payroll and voluntary to all others.

The minister evaded answering the question at first by angrily denouncing "those who are trying to instill a lack of confidence in hospital insurance for political advantage."

The question about compulsion is usually asked by socialists, he said.

"I am not a socialist," came back the questioner.

"I don't want to accuse anybody of being anything they are not, but this sort of question usually comes from that quarter," said Mr. Martin.

AT ALL COSTS

The minister said BCHIS must be maintained at all costs. The service is running smoothly, he added.

The questioner was still not satisfied because Mr. Martin had not answered the question.

Mr. Martin claimed hospitals are satisfied with Social Credit changes in the scheme, and employees and employers are co-operating despite the opposition of persons of "certain political thought."

Another delegate pressed with more questions. He asked who was paying and who was not paying hospital insurance.

Mr. Martin said he did not know, but felt the percentage of non-payers is very small.

The government, he explained, would have to go to extremes — "even set up road blocks and examine people in trains" — to find out who was evading payment.

Low income brackets make up most of the present delinquents, he claimed.

LAW BREAKERS

Later in the robust debate Mr. Martin did assure a questioner that anyone who doesn't pay premiums is "breaking the law."

In his address the minister said his government is about to study the long-standing problem of chronic care.

"The government is anxious to discuss with you the evolution of an over-all provincial and municipal program of chronic care," Mr. Martin said.

He indicated, however, the responsibility for initiating any plans to meet the need rests with the municipalities.

He asked them to consider the question of ownership of hospitals and the financing of them before going to the government for help.

The provision of any hospital facilities, whether acute or chronic, is a community responsibility, he said.

"I don't believe state-controlled hospitals operate as well as local, autonomous hospitals," Mr. Martin said.

OOPS, FORGOT SOMETHING

DALLAS, Texas (UP) — A woman on a shopping spree yesterday drove 15 miles to her home before she discovered she had brought all the packages but had forgotten her six-year-old son.

Police found him standing outside the locked department store.

CANADIAN SOLDIER INJURED, NOT KILLED DURING BRAWL

HANNOVER (AP) — A spokesman at headquarters of the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade today denied a German police report that a Canadian soldier was killed in a fight Thursday at Deilinghofen.

The German police report said a Canadian trooper was killed and another seriously injured in the altercation.

The brigade spokesman said the report was based on a fight between two soldiers, both described as intoxicated, but that neither was killed. He added: "One of the soldiers fell and struck his head. He was knocked unconscious. He was taken to a hospital where he revived. Neither of the soldiers was seriously hurt.

Someone saw the soldier while he was unconscious, assumed he was dead and reported it."

The soldiers were not identified.

Saanich Court Fines 6 Drivers Total of $225

Fines totaling $225 were levied in Saanich court Thursday when five men pleaded guilty to charges of careless driving and one to exceeding the speed limit.

Clifford C. Hill, Colquitz, was fined $50 and has his driving license suspended for careless driving Oct. 4 on the Interurban Road. Henry W. Hubbard, 1242 Cordova Bay Road, was fined $40 on a similar charge, following a two-car collision on East Saanich Road Sept. 3. Magistrate H. C. Hall reserved decision on a driving license suspension for Hubbard until November 5.

A $35 fine was levied against J. F. Erickson, 1025 Pandora, and his license suspended when he pleaded guilty to careless driving on Quadra Oct. 18.

Leon J. Notte, Keating Cross-road, had his driving license suspended and drew a $35 fine for careless driving Oct. 25 on the Patricia Bay Highway. Craig Massey, of Victoria, was fined $30 for exceeding the 50-mile-per-hour limit Oct. 3 on the East Saanich Road.

School Boards Keen to Speed PE Organization

Interest is running high in the provincial education department's new community programs branch, Acting Education Minister Robert Bonner said today.

About 20 school boards are taking advantage of branch's grants in the operation of recreational courses in night schools.

The most popular of these courses are square dancing, keep fit classes, golf, folk dancing, archery, badminton, volleyball and bridge.

The recent session of the Legislature passed a Municipal Act amendment giving authority to city and municipal councils to appoint recreation commissions.

French Council Downs EDC

PARIS (Reuters) — The Council of the Republic, upper house of the French parliament, today delivered a major blow against the long-delayed European army — a cornerstone of Western defense in Europe.

Senators voted 240 to 74 in favor of achieving "a real balance of power" in Europe before ratifying the European Defense Community setting up the six-nation army. By balance of power, they mean the full military co-operation of Britain as a foil to any renewed aggression by Germany.

Korea PW Torture Charges to Go to U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP) — United States officials today began drafting an official request for debate on Communist atrocities in Korea before the United Nations General Assembly.

It was expected to be ready in final form for consideration next week by the steering committee of the General Assembly. Committee approval — expected next Monday — would send the matter before the full assembly.

The atrocity debate request was being prepared as the United States and Russia geared for a final exchange today on the earlier American charge that the Communists operated a Russian-directed torture mill to extract phony germ-war confessions from captured American fliers.

The two main antagonists on the issue introduced Monday by Dr. Charles W. Mayo were listed to speak shortly after the main political committee meets today.

Mayo, an American delegate to the UN, produced documents to show that fliers were subjected to mental and physical tortures to induce them to say the United States engaged in germ warfare.

He was expected to offer new evidence today. The physician is a member of the famous family of doctors that founded the Mayo Clinic.

Why Are We Worrying?

THOSE BUSINESS, LABOR AND political leaders who take the first breath of competition for the storm signals of depression could profitably read a recent speech by Mr. Benjamin Fairless, board chairman of the U.S. Steel Corporation. Mr. Fairless sees nothing seriously wrong with the North American economy but he thinks we can "predict ourselves" into trouble. He adds:

"If I were a Socialist and I wanted to discredit the free enterprise system by producing a serious business slump, I think I would start by predicting from the housetops that hard times were on the way. And if I could shout long enough and loud enough, and could get other people to take up my mournful cry, I think I could frighten millions of customers right out of the market place."

The mournful cries heard so far have not significantly frightened the customers or the investors. Through the current fog of economic and political debate one fact stands out clear and unmistakable—the United States and Canada are richer today than they have ever been and their wealth is still rising.

The gross product of the United States—the chief fact in the world's economy—is now running at the rate of $372 billions a year as against $340 billions in 1952. The gross product of Canada should reach $24.5 billions at the year's end as against $23 billions last year. That is to say, both countries are producing and consuming more goods than ever before and far more, of course, than any nations in all recorded history. Yet to hear some people talk, you would think that North America already had entered the first stages of a great depression.

Something, however, has happened and any change, however small, after an unprecedented inflationary boom, seems to terrify those who have come to regard inflation as normal. What has happened is entirely normal—a return to competition in the world market at large. This was bound to occur as soon as total production rose to meet the demand.

More goods being available, prices tend to soften, though they have softened so far very slightly in most industries. Some of them may well fall farther but that in itself is no cause for alarm as the consumer should know. The real cause for alarm in North America—particularly in Canada, a huge exporter and importer—is the danger that our industries will not or cannot adjust their prices to changes in the domestic and foreign market.

Since we cannot rig the world market to suit us, or even the domestic market beyond narrow limits, the adjustments must be made in any case as the market demands. But will they be made flexibly, sensibly, in orderly stages or must they be made violently later on? Must we price ourselves out of the market before we heed the forces entirely beyond our control?

That question must be answered by managers, labor unions and the consuming public. Apart from foolish policies in business and unions, and groundless alarm among the public, there is no reason to fear the future of the richest society ever known.

The Same for All

AMONG THE RECOMMENDations of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in its annual submission to Ottawa is the classic observation that "unless new opportunities are provided for other countries to earn dollars to pay for their purchases, there can be no satisfactory solution to the dollar problem."

The point was made in reference to the United States, which the Chamber complains has a tendency "to modify the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade." In other words, the United States has been imposing quotas in a number of cases. This makes it more difficult for other nations to sell there, which in turn reduces the ability of these nations to buy from the U.S.

Although the Chamber submission apparently does not mention it, exactly the same conditions apply to Canada, or to any other trading country. But it is a point which tends to become obscured in tariff discussions at Ottawa, when various industries feel that they are threatened by proposed reduction of duties on imports into this country.

Economic laws must be recognized by buyers and sellers alike. They cannot be applied only to the other fellow.

Halloween and Parents

GREATER VICTORIA AUTHORIties have taken exceptional precautions this year to avoid pre-Hallowe'en damage. The sale of fireworks has been restricted in some localities and in certain districts provision has been made for the customary outdoor entertainments on the festive night itself.

Authority has attempted the difficult task of making Halloween sane and safe and still permitting it to be Halloween.

Certainly the occasion should not be made the excuse for vandalism so prevalent a few years ago. Rowdyism and spite damage have no place in the present conception of Halloween. If it can be made a minor festivity for the small children, so much the better. They are entitled to their fun.

But despite precautions, some dangers still exist in the use of explosives, rockets and larger firecrackers. Official action can not eliminate them entirely. Parents have still a responsibility to teach their children safety lessons covering the night. Such instruction could avoid accidents which cause injury each year.

Blunt Alternatives

A SHORT NEWS ITEM FROM the secretary-manager of the Interior Lumber Manufacturers' Association the other day carries its own comment on the position of small operators in that industry.

Wages, the report said, have been reduced as much as 30 cents an hour by 10 small non-union operations in the B.C. interior. The employees have been told that poor markets and lower prices for lumber necessitated the reduction. Unless wages were cut, it was noted, the operations would have to close down.

On the basis of that statement, two alternatives are presented bluntly in this marginal branch of the industry: There must be lower production costs through lower wages or there will be no wages at all. Apparently the local workers understand those facts.

365 Halloweens a Year

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

WELL, boys and tomboys, tomorrow is Halloween. So just put on your Saturday-best zoot suits, or whatever costume makes you feel your oats, and step this way for a little arson, maiming, malicious damage to property, extortion, intimidation, vandalism vagrancy, soliciting alms, and other offenses under the Criminal Code.

Brock

If anyone wants to knock at my door, he's welcome. I rather enjoy seeing the kids, even though they won't stay long enough to sing me a song or do me a dance or tell me a joke. And I have a huge bag of perfectly ghastly candies, all orange and black, left over from last Halloween. They still look pretty good. That is to say, they don't look any worse. They couldn't.

MECHANIC'S SPECIAL?

HERE is an advertisement from the Personal Column of The Times (London): "Nanny required for two young toughs whom only a mother can love, boys 5½ and 2½ and no other children expected; own nurseries, nursery duties, good salary and outings; comfortable home, Richmond, Surrey, for kind but firm person who can keep children happily occupied."

You know those advertisements for really heart-breaking old ruins in the way of cars and houses? "Would suit handy man. Mechanic's special." And so on. This desperate call for a good stern Nanny sounds much the same. "Would suit either masochist or sadist. Do you like to suffer? Or do you like to punish others? Either way, these two little boys are what you need. Bargain. No reasonable offer refused."

THE STARS

ONE of the pleasures of autumn is surely the good supply of evenings for star-gazing (weather permitting), and the first-rate supply of good stars at which to gaze. I have a really excellent book on star-gazing for the beginner. It is "The Stars: A New Way to See Them," by H. A. Rey, published last year by Houghton Mifflin. I forget what it cost me, because (as usual) the Canadian bookseller has snipped the American price off the jacket to spare my feelings. But it wasn't exorbitant, and it is worth a lot to me.

An expert at the Hayden Planetarium in New York says Mr. Rey's outlines of the constellations are the best he's ever seen. Another expert at the Harvard Observatory says his drawings make the constellations far easier to find and to remember. And this is true. It is really a most inspired guide to the heavens, bright without being merely kids' stuff, and reasonably simple while remaining accurate and not popularized into plain piffle.

OF COURSE, staring at the stars isn't always fun, exactly. It can make you sad or thoughtful (too often the same thing). Sometimes, as most of us have noticed, it can be frightening. I was looking at the famous Andromeda Nebula one clear night. It is a small hazy spot by Andromeda's bent knee, and the most distant thing your naked eye can detect. It is 800,000 light-years away. It contains about one hundred billion suns. It is a galaxy, like our own galaxy. An island universe of its own. There are a hundred million of these universes, each containing billions of suns. That's awful. Makes you want to yell, or hide.

LONG ago, when I was at a boarding school, there was a Russian boy in my dormitory. One night we thought he was having nightmares, for he suddenly screamed. But it turned out that he had been awake all along. He was asked to explain his yell, and he said he had been thinking about the stars. That sounds true to me. It sounded true to me at the time, though I was only 14 or 15, and not given to screaming in public for philosophical reasons.

THE SLOBBER-BOOKS

I AM sorry the word "drool" has remained fashionable for so many years. What a disgusting picture it paints! Yet not only do people use it casually to describe their appetite or their appreciation of some food or other, but twice in the last month I've run across it in serious cook books. "Pie lovers, an extremely critical group, kept drooling their praises." (Brown Derby Cookbook, p. 241.) "Fred Allen often drools over the dishes named on our big menu but usually settles for roast beef." (Luchow's German Cookbook.)

Dogs drool. So do very young babies. So, occasionally, do drunks or maniacs. Horses do it a great deal. But the most you can say of the normal greedy man, is that his mouth waters. If you say he drools, you might as well say he dribbles and slobbers. Which is untrue. And even if it were true, which thank heaven it isn't, it still wouldn't be very nice to say so.

OBJECTION SUSTAINED

WHILE talking of the more revolting side of eating, let us praise the wife of a schoolmaster of mine. Because I was rather wild and wayward, at 13, I was asked to eat my meals at the side of this good woman, so that she could tick me off, talk me down, send me out, blow me up, and otherwise direct me. One day she sighed and said, "Brock, eating is a function quite disgusting enough without your embellishments." I suppose I had little sense of style when it came to wolfing the old groceries. But at least I appreciated prose style. That sentence of hers has made me laugh for 30 years now, and I'm deeply grateful.

Universities, Films and Little Dogies

BY STUART KEATE

DR. ALBERT W. ("BUD") TRUEMAN, who was among us this week on his first visit as Commissioner of the National Film Board, is a Truro Bluenose who made good in Upper Canada.

Twelve years ago he was a more or less obscure school inspector in Saint John, N.B. Today he is the $15,000 a year head of an agency which is recognized throughout the world as a leader in the documentary film technique.

Keate

Surprisingly enough, Trueman gives credit for his quick rise to another government agency which is NFB's chief rival in the Canadian cultural field—the CBC.

For 12 years prior to 1942 he had been a professor of English at small Mount Allison College. Then, when he moved to his inspector's job in Saint John ("the first thing I had to do was give the kids decent lavoratories") the CBC invited him to review books on its national network.

"I did it for three years," Dr. Trueman recalls. "In 1945, there was a vacancy at the University of Manitoba when Sidney Smith left to take the Toronto post.

"Nobody was more astonished than I when they telephoned me long distance and asked me if I would be interested in the presidency at Manitoba.

"I didn't know anybody out there. I have always imagined that some board member heard the book reviews, liked my comments, and decided to take a look."

He stayed at Manitoba three years. Then the University of New Brunswick at Fredricton beckoned.

When the Chancellor of that institution happens to be Lord Beaverbrook, "beckoned" is an extremely mild verb.

Dr. Trueman put in five years with the quixotic and impish British publisher.

During this period he attended an Imperial conference of universities in Britain, received the Prince and Princess on their 1951 visit, was elected Maritime member on the National Film Board, and became national president of the Canadian Clubs.

He moved up to the top job in NFB when Arthur Irwin resigned to become Canadian high commissioner to Australia, last July.

Dr. Trueman concedes that it's quite a switch from the comparative calm of the campus to the somewhat hyperthyroid pace of movie production and distribution. But he likes it.

"Our main job," he says, "is to interpret Canada to Canadians, and to tell people abroad something about our country.

"We try to do it simply and honestly. We make a strong effort to stay away from anything that might be labeled propaganda. In other words, if we reflect the various aspects of Canadian life as objective reporters, the story will tell itself."

Dr. Trueman takes over at a time when National Film Board prestige is high. Its color film, "Royal Journey," has been acclaimed around the world. Mental health films like "Shyness" have been accorded accolades from the critics and Norman McLaren's unique animation, "Neighbors," recently won an Academy Award in Hollywood.

A big, handsome, gregarious man, "Bud" Trueman has scored solidly with the industry and with the press in his tour of Canada.

Some of the newsmen have already discovered—and made demands on—an additional talent of Trueman's. He is the possessor of a fine bass-baritone voice and has sung solos with the Saint John symphony.

During his recent visit to Victoria he sat down at the piano in a friend's home and began to play a simple but haunting melody.

When he came around to the second chorus he began to sing, and children gathered by his side, their eyes shining in honest admiration.

Name of the song? "Kipi-yi-yi-yay, Get Along, Little Dogies!"

PRISONERS

I feel that a lot of people who have never tried running a house don't realize that it is a lonely business, and that if you live your life more or less within the four walls of your home, it is very easy to get things out of proportion, to work yourself into a state of real anxiety over things that aren't worth that degree of feeling—the paint peeling from the kitchen walls or a crack in one of the best tea cups. The view from the sink is narrow and the conversation of the sink is dull and depressing. I feel that husbands and children ought to be able to enjoy the company of their wives and their mothers, and not merely to depend on them for physical well-being, and that contact with the outside world, even if it consists only in polishing somebody else's furniture, may be of immense value in this way.

As Our Readers See It

LIQUOR A GLOBAL PROBLEM

The liquor problem is a world-wide one and one that has afflicted mankind from the very beginning, but today it is ever growing more acute and more serious to the leaders of many countries.

In Britain there is a public house for every 592 of the population and the nation is spending 16 per cent of its income on liquor and tobacco. France is paying for the final results of alcoholic drinking through hospital care, prison expenses, accidents, loss of time, etc., ten times as much as the amount received from alcohol taxation.

In Japan one leading official said that Sake, the national alcoholic beverage made from rice, is the curse of Japan. In India the premier and other government officials are working for the introduction of prohibition, provision for which is drafted into their constitution.

All through the Middle East is to be found the same general feeling against liquor, and one country after another is taking action banning the importation of alcoholic beverages.

When these and other countries are alive to the dangers and evils of liquor drinking, surely we in Canada and British Columbia and in Victoria in particular should not be indifferent to the evil effects of liquor on ourselves and our youth, nor in any way come behind in what less favored countries are doing to suppress the whole liquor traffic and habit.

This is the opportune time to express ourselves in B.C. against any further provisions for obtaining drink in our constituencies.

STRONGER OPPOSITION

"Our parliamentary system depends on an adequate Opposition watching the Government, however good it may be, and good government depends in the long run on the continual availability of an alternative government."

So spoke Bruce Hutchison in a powerful article in Maclean's of October 15 in which he deplored the paucity of Progressive Conservative representation and stressed the necessity of a stronger Opposition. In thus speaking this philosopher sheds his deep-rooted Liberal principles and, putting patriotism foremost, crosses the floor of the House to help the underdog. This is wisdom as rare as it is outstanding.

In the forthcoming by-election the electorate would do well to heed such sage counsel for the national good. Fortuitously, the situation provides an excellent choice in the person of Dean Finlayson, leader of the PC party for B.C., in whom we see a young and vigorous candidate of keen intellect, with qualities of citizenship that make for sound statecraft.

QUESTION OF DICTATORS

Mrs. Kathleen Worthington Lake's letter to your paper on Oct. 26 states that a backward step has been taken in respect to the abolition of the alternative vote.

I should like, through the medium of your paper, to state that a forward step has been taken in the abolishment of the alternative vote. She goes on to state Sir Winston Churchill supported the alternative vote, which is quite incorrect. He stated the alternative vote was unfeasible and undemocratic and a waste of time.

She says the Socreds are dictators. I wonder if she really knows what dictatorship means? We had a good idea when the Coalition government was in power. No wonder Mr. Bennett and the late Tilly Rolston crossed the floor of the House.

HIDDEN POWER

I note that another strike is pending—this time a serious one. The insatiable maw of the so-called union is at work again and is becoming a menace to the safety and welfare of the public and is spreading all over the world.

There is evidently a hidden power behind this with which the so-called authorities seem to be unable to cope.

Let us hope we have the military on our side. I believe they did use the military in England in the case of the food strike there.

If this hidden power cannot be got at and eliminated, one dreads to think what will be the outcome.

TERMINUS AT SWARTZ BAY

I was pleased to note in your paper of Oct. 24 that the Chamber of Commerce harbor development group is anxious that a fast, convenient and reasonable ferry service be put into operation to the mainland.

The time is overdue for such a service. I feel Swartz Bay located at the tip of the Saanich Peninsula would be an ideal spot as a terminus for a ferry to Vancouver and its possibilities should be looked into. While Sidney has been used as a terminus in the past, it is often difficult to land there in rough weather, while Swartz Bay is sheltered and also located nearer the Canadian Mainland.

I am told the distance from Swartz Bay is about the same to Vancouver as from Nanaimo to Vancouver.

There is a move on foot to have an inter-Island ferry serve the Gulf Islands from Swartz Bay. This, together with the Salt Spring Island ferry docking there, would serve to concentrate the travel between the Mainland and Vancouver Island. Duncan district south, with the facilities of the Mill Bay ferry may also find a ferry connection at Swartz Bay very convenient.

COALESCING?

No doubt there are many Liberals who feel as I do that in this by-electon we have an opportunity to do more than just give lip service to the support of decent, democratic and sane government here in B.C.

Our leader, Mr. Laing stated in the recent session that if B.C. was ever to return to democratic government it would have to return to the tried and true parties the Liberal and Conservatives, an observation that anyone who witnessed the antics of the last session will agree with, and will heartily endorse.

A strong opposition, something that cannot exist as long as the socialist party hold that position, is essential to the welfare of every British Columbian. Premier Bennett has deliberately juggled the Elections Act to try and seat Mr. Gunderson by reverting back to the single ballot system of voting and is counting on a split vote to elect his choice. Why is he passing over Mr. Chant who is a real Social Crediter?

The Victoria Conservatives have shown their intent to fight by throwing in their No. 1 man Deane Finlayson into the contest. This young leader and veteran has shown great promise and the qualities which are necessary to become a statesman and surely would be a tremendous asset to the opposition. He would help to overcome the inactivity of the official C.C.F. opposition and to throw off our backs this iniquitous and dictatorial group who now form our government.

The Victoria Liberals could and should render ineffective Mr. Bennett's slick cunning by supporting Mr. Finlayson and not contesting the Victoria seat.

MONEY FOR REAL ESTATE LOANS

Recent news articles suggest the federal government proposes changing the Bank Act so as to allow chartered banks to make loans on real estate. The reason given for this drastic change is that other sources of real estate loans are tending to shrink.

Wht are the facts?

One organized group of companies alone approved real estate loans in the first half of 1953 amounting to, in round figures, one quarter of a billion dollars, the highest volume approved since records have been kept.

This sum was, in fact, 24 per cent larger than that for the first half of 1952.

Even more striking is the fact that the approvals in the first half of 1953 were nearly $30,000,000 in excess of the approvals for the entire 12 months of 1947.

These facts do not indicate that the presently recognized main sources of mortgage loans are drying up.

"FACTS."

UNDEMOCRATIC

There is an attitude abroad in the city that Mr. Bennett's cabinet should be filled by those whom he chooses, and that they should accordingly have seats in the Legislature.

This is a strange thing, and a very undemocratic thing. A perfectly good member, whom the city put in last June has been requested to withdraw to make way for a minister of finance who has difficulty in getting elected. No doubt that member will get his reward, but just the same, he is not giving his constituents their money's worth.

Why does not Mr. Bennett accept the verdict of the voters? Are there no other members competent to take this portfolio? What about Mr. Chant, who has had cabinet experience already and is by no means a fool.

It is idle to cry that other parties should not oppose the minister. Of course they should. It is their duty, not only to their principles but to the province generally, to strengthen the lamentably weak opposition.

It is up to us here to put a stop to this business of juggling seats and playing fast and loose with the electorate. Mr. Bennett should be made to realize that not only do voters give power, but they also take it away. His cock-a-hoop attitude needs a dash of cold reality.

A strong sensible voice is needed on the Speaker's left. Why not that of Mr. Finlayson?

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

Not Dead, Just Resting

IT'S encouraging to hear Dick Ellis explain that rugby isn't dead here. I guess it's only resting, as it has rested so many times before.

If rugby died out entirely in this community, Victoria would be packing a withered limb. There's something more to the game, and it means a little more to the town, than just another sport. In a relatively meretricious age, rugby has fought, with pretty fair success, to keep its virtue. The boys and men still play for fun.

Stott

There are lots of reasons why rugby has its ups and downs here. Most sports are cyclical. If they're professional promotions, they can often be sustained by smart publicity work even on off years. If they're amateur—remember the word?—they languish periodically.

They tell me rugby hasn't changed much in the last 20 years or so. When you play it you get out of the game just what you put into it. There's no cut at the end of the season—no gate either, for that matter—and it usually costs the players money. Most clubs make their own levies for uniforms and a guy buys his own boots. Rugby won't compromise—or not much.

BRUISES AND EXHILARATION

So the game rides up and down, sometimes to cheering hundreds on the sidelines, sometimes to the grunts of an unwatched scrum. It pays off in bumps, bruises and trick knees, that cause trouble in later years. And it pays off in that sharp, fine exhilaration of hard body contact sport, the fellowship of victory and defeat on springy turf and in mud. Probably no team sport hands out physical punishment more generously. Perhaps no game ends with fewer grudges.

Over the years Victoria has flocked to matches or stayed away, depending on the current popularity of rugby and other sports. Thousands jammed the old Willows oval to watch Nepia, the great New Zealand Maori, prove to Victoria Rep "Boss" Johnson that a fullback is a scoring threat.

Two reporters have stood alone in the rain, cussing dejectedly as water ran down their necks and out of their boots while the old Scottish and the Bays, indistinguishable in the Oak Bay Park mud, sloshed through a league final, unhonored and unsung, but idiotically happy to be playing.

You look back over the rugby of 20 years ago and you think of the line Paul Gallico cribbed from the Battle Hymn of the Republic, "Mine eyes have seen the glory." You remember the big Scottish team, with Reg Wenman, Fred Cabeldu, Larry Henderson, Bobby Tye and Jackie Bryden playing in the backfield with Tony Farrar.

You recall Farrar's stock play, a quick cut in from the wing and a slanting run for the corner flag, and you can almost hear the old-timer's comparing it with the runs Carew Martin used to make.

You remember the rep games, before a sports writer borrowed a Stanford name to call the team the Crimson Tide. You reconstruct those smashing forward rushes, Godfrey Wenman, Campbell Forbes, Johnny Rowland and Horace Goad out in front, dribbling and shoving, "like they play in Scotland" as the old boys used to say.

You remember Bob McInnes working harder on the sidelines than his crack Bays were on the field. You think of Chuck McDonald and the Navy's big seasons.

You recall Charlie Morton and the team he built for the Fifth Brigade from the Gaunt boys, the Engelsons, Ken Flemming, Paul Rowe and a crowd of youngsters.

THOSE ARMY GAMES

Your mind goes back to the November 11 Army games, with brass bands and regimental ceremony. You think of matches against the Japanese team that came over in the early thirties, and the trials for the Canadian team that repaid the visit. Memories turn to the games against California.

But best of all you cherish recollections of the McKechnie Cup play and Victoria forwards who couldn't be stopped.

A parade of players passes your mind's eye, muddied, sometimes bloodied, usually limping and generally grinning — Essen Young, Henry Cockin, Brian Hunnings, Bill Locke, Phil Willis, Roddy McInnes, a green kid called Lynn Patrick, ambling Torchy Peden and his brother Doug. They go on and on, from the Crimson Tide down to University School, where they're still making rugby players.

Your eyes have seen the glory and you hope Dick Ellis is right—that rugby isn't dead; it's only resting.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Dangers With Cortisone

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

I am sorry that my recent column mentioning some of the dangers involved in the prolonged and useless taking of cortisone has upset many persons and troubled their doctors. My idea in writing is was not to worry the people who need the drug badly—people like those who are suffering from severe and crippling rheumatoid arthritis, or lupus erythematosus, or some other serious and painful condition which can be relieved perhaps only with the help of cortisone. If I had such a disease I would certainly take the drug, but I would not go on, as many people now do, taking it for weeks or months after it has failed to work, or after the disease has let up.

Dr. Alvarez

What I object to is not the wise and necessary use of cortisone, but its stupid and senseless use in the cases of many mild diseases which we doctors now know are not helped by it. Naturally, when cortisone was first discovered, doctors and patients wanted to try it out on every disease known to man. Skin specialists tried it out on all skin diseases, and in some cases they saved lives that they otherwise would have lost.

But soon, as Dr. Paul O'Leary and his colleagues, of the Mayo Clinic, wrote so well the other day, they found that the drug was of no value in the treatment of most of the milder skin diseases. Accordingly, they stopped using it for those diseases, and now all of us ought to stop, too. But we are not stopping. People all over the country are still insisting that when they have a severe sunburn or a patch of inflamed skin due to poison oak, they be given cortisone. Personally, I would never think of taking it for such mild troubles, even if I did not know of the many discomforts that can come from using too much of the drug.

MUST WARN OF DANGER

Several people have written me pretty harsh letters saying I had no right to worry people by telling of the dangers of using cortisone, but I think they are wrong; ignorance of danger is no protection against it. I feel it is part of my job to warn my readers of dangers to their health when I learn of them. I wish more of the people who became angry with me had noted that I was objecting not to the sane but to the silly uses of the drug.

As I just wrote one critic, if I were on a ship in a tropical harbor and could see 12-foot sharks basking around in the water, I wouldn't go swimming there just for fun. But if the ship suddenly got on fire from stem to stern I would jump overboard and swim for shore. I would have to take my chances with the sharks. Similarly, I wouldn't think of taking cortisone just for a few sniffles or a little stomach ache, but if my skin ever breaks out with the big water-filled blebs of a malignant type of pemphigus, and my friends the skin specialists begin to worry about my life, I will gladly take cortisone, and I'll keep taking it until I am out of danger. Then I'll quit it.

What all of us need in this world is common sense, and the use of a little knowledge, and a little judgment. Unfortunately, many of us just do what is popular at the time, without thinking much about any whys or wherefores. And if someone scares us by telling us that we are doing something that is unwise and possibly dangerous, our first impulse is to jump on him and tell him he ought to be ashamed of himself.

Many have written asking how long one has to take cortisone before he can injure the adrenals, but that question I cannot yet answer. Other writers want to know if, after stopping the use of cortisone, the adrenals will enlarge and go back to normal. Again, I do not know. I wish I did know. Many workers will now be gathering the observations needed to give answers to our questions.

CAN BE HARMFUL

Let us all remember that in the case of some diseases cortisone is not only useless, it can be harmful. To illustrate: in my mail this week was a letter from a mother who said that her daughter who always was a bit erratic and poorly adjusted, recently insisted on taking cortisone for a little backache. The family doctor warned against this, but the girl went on and took the medicine. As sometimes happens, she became so much more disturbed mentally that she had to go into a psychiatric hospital. Fortunately, she is now recovering.

Another patient, a man, thought that if cortisone was so good for his wife's arthritis, it ought to be good for his stomach ulcer. His doctor told him to leave it alone, but he wouldn't listen. Now he is just out of the hospital after a nearly fatal perforation of the ulcer.

The essential point to remember is that in many cases of certain diseases, cortisone is a life-saver, and one of the greatest gifts to men and women. Let us now use this great gift wisely and not foolishly. Let us heed the advice of the experts, and when they say, "go easy," let us go easy.

LETHAL CHAMBER REFRESHING TONIC TO POISONED FLUFFY

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A gas chamber, death to most dogs, was a tonic to Fluffy.

Fluffy ate some rat poison and was writhing in pain. James Cox, the dog's owner, called the humane society.

Jones put the dog in the society's gas chamber, which he said was operating properly.

The officer opened the chamber 35 minutes later and there was Fluffy, barking happily and wagging his tail. He went home with Cox.

"The whole thing's impossible, but it happened anyhow," the SPCA man commented.

APPEAL FOR NURSES

WINNIPEG (BUP) — A total of 726 retired and inactive nurses in this area will be urged to help in the treatment of polio patients in the province by the polio advisory committee.

The appeal stemmed from reports of "serious shortages" of nurses to care for more than 200 patients at King George Isolation Hospital.

Meanwhile, doctors reported seven new polio cases in Manitoba today, boosting the 1953 case list to 2,186. The death toll in Manitoba was 81 since the beginning of the year.

In Alberta, the 70th polio death of the year was recorded by provincial health authorities. The death was reported with four new cases of the disease, raising the case total in that province to 1,020.

Quick Weather Change Brings Bitter Cold, Snow to Prairies

WINNIPEG (BUP) — The strangest fall weather on record over Canada's prairies edged out football as the main topic today as weathermen forecast three inches of snow in some areas.

The same northern Alberta regions sweltered under a boiling sun Thursday.

Temperatures were expected to dip down to the low twenties in Winnipeg today. Weathermen said a disturbance rolling in from Alberta would likely bring the first major snow of the year.

Northern Ontario shivered under a north wind and 20 degree temperatures. Snow was reported in the Kenora area.

Police in Edmonton Thursday night blamed more than 50 minor automobile accidents on slippery highways.

Canadians in Korea Keep Tax Concession

$1 Per Day Exemption on Income Applies To Troops Sent to Asia Since Cease-Fire

OTTAWA—The federal government has decided to continue in effect the one dollar per day income tax deduction which applies to Canadian servicemen in the Far East, a National Defense Department spokesman said Thursday.

This decision means that Canadian servicemen who have proceeded to Korea since the cease-fire will now be able to claim the special concession. Under it the troops may deduct one dollar per day for every day they were stationed in the Far Eastern theatre.

By the latest decision the government has reversed an earlier decision made to remove the tax concession at the time that special "theatre of war" veterans' benefits were terminated.

The government had earlier decided that the tax conession should be terminated retroactively effective on July 27, the day after the cease-fire. However, this deadline was advanced to Oct. 31.

There followed strenuous protests from the troops and from army officers. Officers were concerned over the effect on the morale of the Canadian servicemen in the Korean theatre. The government has apparently heeded the protests and has extended the concession on an indefinite basis due to the lack of amenities in Korea.

FEW WILL PAY

The tax abatement also applies to navy and air force personnel in the Far East. It means that excepting senior officers, few men stationed in the eastern theatre will pay any income tax. The normal tour of duty is a year. The tax abatement does not apply to Canadian troops in Germany and France. However they enjoy amenities that troops in Korea do not have.

A Victoria housewife whose husband is serving with the Canadian army in Korea spoke for thousands of servicemen's wives across Canada today when she said: "That $365 exemption has come to mean a great deal to me. I would hate to do without it."

After reading newspaper reports that the government proposed to discontinue the dollar-a-day tax exemption for Canadian servicemen in Korea, she heard today that the exemption was to continue after all.

ALTERS BUDGET

Asking that she should remain anonymous—"my husband would prefer it that way"—she said:

"We have two young kiddies and it's not easy to feed and clothe them with what we get now. When I thought we were going to lose that allowance I didn't know what I was going to do."

Word that the government proposed to continue the $1-a-day exemption came from an official source in Ottawa today.

The government had been considering withdrawal of the exemption, which would have placed troops in the Far East on the same pay basis as those in Canada or Europe.

The spokesman said continuing the exemption will mean that almost all troops in Korea and Japan will pay no income tax.

Lost Salesman Writes Home

CALGARY (CP)—Larry Capstick, 45-year-old Red Deer salesman who vanished from his hotel room here October 7, has been found in Toronto, police said Thursday.

Police said they were informed by Mrs. Capstick that her husband had written to her from Toronto saying he suffered a memory lapse, shortly after leaving Red Deer for Calgary.

Capstick became the object of a wide police search when he disappeared leaving his clothes in the hotel room and his car parked on a nearby parking lot.

Prior to his disappearance, he was last heard from by his wife when he called her October 3 to say he would be home in a couple of days. When he failed to show up Mrs. Capstick got in touch with police.

Friendly countries split on an international issue should be able to discuss their differences "without everybody in the world knowing about them."

Mr. Pearson said "results of negotiations and broad policies should be public knowledge, but agreements might be negotiated a little more quietly."

Not Dead, Just Resting

IT'S encouraging to hear Dick Ellis explain that rugby isn't dead here. I guess it's only resting, as it has rested so many times before.

If rugby died out entirely in this community, Victoria would be packing a withered limb. There's something more to the game, and it means a little more to the town, than just another sport. In a relatively meretricious age, rugby has fought, with pretty fair success, to keep its virtue. The boys and men still play for fun.

Stott

There are lots of reasons why rugby has its ups and downs here. Most sports are cyclical. If they're professional promotions, they can often be sustained by smart publicity work even on off years. If they're amateur—remember the word?—they languish periodically.

They tell me rugby hasn't changed much in the last 20 years or so. When you play it you get out of the game just what you put into it. There's no cut at the end of the season—no gate either, for that matter—and it usually costs the players money. Most clubs make their own levies for uniforms and a guy buys his own boots. Rugby won't compromise—or not much.

BRUISES AND EXHILARATION

So the game rides up and down, sometimes to cheering hundreds on the sidelines, sometimes to the grunts of an unwatched scrum. It pays off in bumps, bruises and trick knees, that cause trouble in later years. And it pays off in that sharp, fine exhilaration of hard body contact sport, the fellowship of victory and defeat on springy turf and in mud. Probably no team sport hands out physical punishment more generously. Perhaps no game ends with fewer grudges.

Over the years Victoria has flocked to matches or stayed away, depending on the current popularity of rugby and other sports. Thousands jammed the old Willows oval to watch Nepia, the great New Zealand Maori, prove to Victoria Rep "Boss" Johnson that a fullback is a scoring threat.

Two reporters have stood alone in the rain, cussing dejectedly as water ran down their necks and out of their boots while the old Scottish and the Bays, indistinguishable in the Oak Bay Park mud, sloshed through a league final, unhonored and unsung, but idiotically happy to be playing.

You look back over the rugby of 20 years ago and you think of the line Paul Gallico cribbed from the Battle Hymn of the Republic, "Mine eyes have seen the glory." You remember the big Scottish team, with Reg Wenman, Fred Cabeldu, Larry Henderson, Bobby Tye and Jackie Bryden playing in the backfield with Tony Farrar.

You recall Farrar's stock play, a quick cut in from the wing and a slanting run for the corner flag, and you can almost hear the old-timer's comparing it with the runs Carew Martin used to make.

You remember the rep games, before a sports writer borrowed a Stanford name to call the team the Crimson Tide. You reconstruct those smashing forward rushes, Godfrey Wenman, Campbell Forbes, Johnny Rowland and Horace Goad out in front, dribbling and shoving, "like they play in Scotland" as the old boys used to say.

You remember Bob McInnes working harder on the sidelines than his crack Bays were on the field. You think of Chuck McDonald and the Navy's big seasons.

You recall Charlie Morton and the team he built for the Fifth Brigade from the Gaunt boys, the Engelsons, Ken Flemming, Paul Rowe and a crowd of youngsters.

THOSE ARMY GAMES

Your mind goes back to the November 11 Army games, with brass bands and regimental ceremony. You think of matches against the Japanese team that came over in the early thirties, and the trials for the Canadian team that repaid the visit. Memories turn to the games against California.

But best of all you cherish recollections of the McKechnie Cup play and Victoria forwards who couldn't be stopped.

A parade of players passes your mind's eye, muddied, sometimes bloodied, usually limping and generally grinning — Essen Young, Henry Cockin, Brian Hunnings, Bill Locke, Phil Willis, Roddy McInnes, a green kid called Lynn Patrick, ambling Torchy Peden and his brother Doug. They go on and on, from the Crimson Tide down to University School, where they're still making rugby players.

Your eyes have seen the glory and you hope Dick Ellis is right—that rugby isn't dead; it's only resting.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Dangers With Cortisone

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

I am sorry that my recent column mentioning some of the dangers involved in the prolonged and useless taking of cortisone has upset many persons and troubled their doctors. My idea in writing is was not to worry the people who need the drug badly—people like those who are suffering from severe and crippling rheumatoid arthritis, or lupus erythematosus, or some other serious and painful condition which can be relieved perhaps only with the help of cortisone. If I had such a disease I would certainly take the drug, but I would not go on, as many people now do, taking it for weeks or months after it has failed to work, or after the disease has let up.

Dr. Alvarez

What I object to is not the wise and necessary use of cortisone, but its stupid and senseless use in the cases of many mild diseases which we doctors now know are not helped by it. Naturally, when cortisone was first discovered, doctors and patients wanted to try it out on every disease known to man. Skin specialists tried it out on all skin diseases, and in some cases they saved lives that they otherwise would have lost.

But soon, as Dr. Paul O'Leary and his colleagues, of the Mayo Clinic, wrote so well the other day, they found that the drug was of no value in the treatment of most of the milder skin diseases. Accordingly, they stopped using it for those diseases, and now all of us ought to stop, too. But we are not stopping. People all over the country are still insisting that when they have a severe sunburn or a patch of inflamed skin due to poison oak, they be given cortisone. Personally, I would never think of taking it for such mild troubles, even if I did not know of the many discomforts that can come from using too much of the drug.

MUST WARN OF DANGER

Several people have written me pretty harsh letters saying I had no right to worry people by telling of the dangers of using cortisone, but I think they are wrong; ignorance of danger is no protection against it. I feel it is part of my job to warn my readers of dangers to their health when I learn of them. I wish more of the people who became angry with me had noted that I was objecting not to the sane but to the silly uses of the drug.

As I just wrote one critic, if I were on a ship in a tropical harbor and could see 12-foot sharks basking around in the water, I wouldn't go swimming there just for fun. But if the ship suddenly got on fire from stem to stern I would jump overboard and swim for shore. I would have to take my chances with the sharks. Similarly, I wouldn't think of taking cortisone just for a few sniffles or a little stomach ache, but if my skin ever breaks out with the big water-filled blebs of a malignant type of pemphigus, and my friends the skin specialists begin to worry about my life, I will gladly take cortisone, and I'll keep taking it until I am out of danger. Then I'll quit it.

What all of us need in this world is common sense, and the use of a little knowledge, and a little judgment. Unfortunately, many of us just do what is popular at the time, without thinking much about any whys or wherefores. And if someone scares us by telling us that we are doing something that is unwise and possibly dangerous, our first impulse is to jump on him and tell him he ought to be ashamed of himself.

Many have written asking how long one has to take cortisone before he can injure the adrenals, but that question I cannot yet answer. Other writers want to know if, after stopping the use of cortisone, the adrenals will enlarge and go back to normal. Again, I do not know. I wish I did know. Many workers will now be gathering the observations needed to give answers to our questions.

CAN BE HARMFUL

Let us all remember that in the case of some diseases cortisone is not only useless, it can be harmful. To illustrate: in my mail this week was a letter from a mother who said that her daughter who always was a bit erratic and poorly adjusted, recently insisted on taking cortisone for a little backache. The family doctor warned against this, but the girl went on and took the medicine. As sometimes happens, she became so much more disturbed mentally that she had to go into a psychiatric hospital. Fortunately, she is now recovering.

Another patient, a man, thought that if cortisone was so good for his wife's arthritis, it ought to be good for his stomach ulcer. His doctor told him to leave it alone, but he wouldn't listen. Now he is just out of the hospital after a nearly fatal perforation of the ulcer.

The essential point to remember is that in many cases of certain diseases, cortisone is a life-saver, and one of the greatest gifts to men and women. Let us now use this great gift wisely and not foolishly. Let us heed the advice of the experts, and when they say, "go easy," let us go easy.

LETHAL CHAMBER REFRESHING TONIC TO POISONED FLUFFY

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A gas chamber, death to most dogs, was a tonic to Fluffy.

Fluffy ate some rat poison and was writhing in pain. James Cox, the dog's owner, called the humane society.

Jones put the dog in the society's gas chamber, which he said was operating properly.

The officer opened the chamber 35 minutes later and there was Fluffy, barking happily and wagging his tail. He went home with Cox.

"The whole thing's impossible, but it happened anyhow," the SPCA man commented.

APPEAL FOR NURSES

WINNIPEG (BUP) — A total of 726 retired and inactive nurses in this area will be urged to help in the treatment of polio patients in the province by the polio advisory committee.

The appeal stemmed from reports of "serious shortages" of nurses to care for more than 200 patients at King George Isolation Hospital.

Meanwhile, doctors reported seven new polio cases in Manitoba today, boosting the 1953 case list to 2,186. The death toll in Manitoba was 81 since the beginning of the year.

Prime Minister Churchill was there in full evening dress and knee breeches. He wore the emblem of the Garter, Britain's oldest order of chivalry.

It was the diplomatic colony's event of the year.

The Queen wore a dress of pale green and pink tulle with a spray of pink artificial roses on her left shoulder and a kingfisher-tailed blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter. Her jewelry was a diamond tiara, necklace and earrings.

The Duke of Edinburgh wore evening dress with knee breeches, on which the Garter emblem shone.

Quick Weather Change Brings Bitter Cold, Snow to Prairies

WINNIPEG (BUP) — The strangest fall weather on record over Canada's prairies edged out football as the main topic today as weathermen forecast three inches of snow in some areas.

The same northern Alberta regions sweltered under a boiling sun Thursday.

Temperatures were expected to dip down to the low twenties in Winnipeg today. Weathermen said a disturbance rolling in from Alberta would likely bring the first major snow of the year.

Northern Ontario shivered under a north wind and 20 degree temperatures. Snow was reported in the Kenora area.

Police in Edmonton Thursday night blamed more than 50 minor automobile accidents on slippery highways.

U.S. Tariffs Not to Blame For World Problems—Baruch

WASHINGTON (UP)—Elder statesman Bernard M. Baruch has warned the administration against letting American tariff rates be made the whipping boy for all world trade problems, it was learned today.

Baruch's views were submitted to President Eisenhower's trade policy commission, headed by Clarence B. Randall.

"In previous studies of this kind, too much emphasis was placed on tariff reduction as if it held the solution to all international economic difficulties," Baruch told the commission.

"One effect of this distorted emphasis is to give foreign countries an excuse for blaming their troubles on the United States and, by feeling sorry for themesives, to overlook what they must do on their own . . .

"At present, the lack of stable currencies is a far more serious obstacle to free trade than tariff barriers."

Heavy Rain Floods Many Halifax Homes

HALIFAX (BUP). — Nearly four inches of rain which fell within 24 hours left more than 200 cellars flooded and railroad under passes blocked here Thursday. Traffic at an important city exit was tied up for three hours. Hundreds of requests poured into the city commissioner of works for pumps to get rid of water in basements.

B.C. Firm Gets Part of Alaska Pipeline Work

$29 Million Job Starts in 30 Days

Marwell Construction Co., Vancouver, is one of the three firms associated in a $29,001,287 contract for construction of U.S. Army's 621-mile fuel pipeline in Alaska.

Construction is to start within 30 days. Completion is scheduled for Sept., 1955. Award of the contract was announced at Washington, D.C., Thursday.

The eight-inch line will carry petroleum products from Haines to Fairbanks in Alaska. More than one-third of the line 284 miles will be in northern B.C.

The firms associated with Marwell in the winning tender are Williams Bros. of Tulsa, Oklahoma, and McLoughlin Inc. of Great Falls, Mont.

Work involved in the project includes supplying and laying 621 miles of 8⅝-inch seamless steel pipe, construction of a wharf at Haines, building of five pumping stations (three in Canada), construction of a complete terminal near Fairbanks with two intermediate take-off stations and two tank farms.

The pipeline's 50-foot right-of-way will cross rugged terrain over mountains, canyons, rivers and miles of swamp. Much of the line parallels the Alaska Highway under the shadow of towering snowy 14,000 and 16,000 peaks of the Stelias and Wrangell Mountain ranges. For six miles it skirts Canada's 290-foot deep Kluane Lake.

Varied climates also confronts construction, from cool summers and relatively mild winters in southeastern Alaska to warm summers and extreme cold in Yukon Territory and interior Alaska, much of it over perpetually frozen subsoil.

Dominion Bank, 10 cents extra, payable Dec. 15; record Nov. 10; xd Nov. 9 (making $1.30 for year against $1.20.)

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG (CP)—Grains were irregular at the close today on the Winnipeg grain exchange, in sympathy with firmness on United States markets. Rye showed the best tone. Overseas reports said one cargo of Canadian barley has been sold to Japan.

Export loadings of Canadian wheat overnight included: United Kingdom 845,000 bushels, Switzerland 365,000, Belgium 145,000, Israel 370,000, Bolivia 190,000, Norway 75,000 and Portuguese East Africa 75,000. Trade reports said Japan also had bought nine cargoes—about 2,800,000 bushels—of Canadian wheat.

Toronto Mother Charged With Beating Tot to Death

TORONTO (BUP) — A 23-year-old mother was held on a charge of murder today in the death of her three-year-old daughter, whose head she allegedly beat against a table top to stop her from crying.

Mrs. Doris Martyn, who is expecting another child in December, was arrested Thursday. The child, Patricia Ann, died in the Hospital for Sick Children Wednesday morning of a fractured skull and a brain hemorrhage. It was her birthday.

Police accused Mrs. Martyn of battering the child into unconsciousness Monday to stop her from crying while she was giving her a bath. Police said she left for several hours until her husband, Arnold Martyn, 32, returned from work.

Police said Mrs. Martyn told them her husband tried unsuccessfully to revive the child and then took her to the hospital, where officials were told she fell out of her crib.

MOTHER OF QUADS MARRIED TO 34-YEAR-OLD MECHANIC

LANSING, Mich. (UP)—A mechanic vowed today he would be a "good father" to the three survivors of the quadruplets born Tuesday to the woman he married Thursday.

The mechanic, John Van Alstine, 34, of Lansing, was married to Mrs. June Trollman in a hastily arranged bedside ceremony. He said he had been in love with the attractive divorcee for more than a year.

He said he had wanted to marry Mrs. Trollman "for a long time" but terms of a recent divorce prevented it. He ducked questions about whether he was the father of the quads.

Van Alstine said he would take his bride and the three surviving quads—two boys and a girl—to his home as soon as they are released from the hospital.

Police Find No Trace Of Missing Wisconsin Girl

LA GROSSE, Wis. (AP)—Only a lucky break, it is felt by authorities here, will turn up any concrete evidence in the disappearance of 15-year-old Evelyn Hartley six nights ago.

Police Chief George Long, who has admitted his department is "up against a stone wall," was joined today by district attorney John Bosshard in the belief that it now is a matter of fortune whether search parties which have been combing the rugged countryside will come up with anything tangible.

"If we get a good break we may develop something," said Bosshard. "So far we have had none, despite the fact our searchers have worked hard at their job."

United Hosts Shores

Milligan Seeks Stronger Defense

In an effort to bolster their sagging scoring punch, Victoria United will present a shuffled line-up Saturday for their crucial Coast Soccer League match with North Shore Reds at Athletic Park at 2.30.

Having scored but nine goals in the last six games, United has not shown a sufficiently strong defense to make up for the lack of offense so coach Wally Milligan is mixing up his forward wall and hopes to pull out the right combination.

Cedric Robb, usually installed on a wing to utilize his fast-breaking speed, will be used at centre while centre Whitey Turner moves out to Robb's wing. Hec McIntyre will be at one inside and young George Wright at the other with diminutive Ab Travis the other flanker.

Aggressive centre Tommy Druce is not expected to be available for the game, nor is newcomer Bill McIntyre. Ray Wilkinson has been hospitalized with an ear infection.

United's defense in front of goaltender Bill McAllister will remain intact with Bill Hope and Joe Robbins handling full-back duties and Herman Henry pivoting Harry Carruthers and Jackie Robbins on the halfback line.

SPARES

Available for relief duty will be capable spares Timmy Walker, Chick Newman and Roy Speller.

For the second straight week, United will be playing with one eye on top place in the standings. Tied for third place, United could move into a tie for the lead with a victory at home and the right combination of wins and losses on the mainland.

TRAVIS RETURNS

Saturday's game will be a bit of a "homecoming" although not for the benefit of United. Two ex-United players, goalie Joe Travis and forward Stan Bob, are with North Shore and could prove to be annoying flies in the United ointment.

Travis will have Harry Anderson and George Beckett as his fullbacks and a smart half-back combo of Alex Reid, Malcolm McManus and Tom Cooper.

Ageless Fred Whittaker will centre the forwards with Gordon Walton and Gordy Ion on the insides and Bruce Ashdown and Jimmy Greig at the flanks.

Spares are Ian Douglas, Bob and Trev Harvey.

United manager George Eade has announced the acquisition of forward Jim Hart, a 25-year-old Irishman, who played with Distillery of the Irish League. Although he has been impressive in the workouts he has attended, Hart still needs time to get into condition.

FIGHT RESULTS

SAN JOSE, Calif.—Eddie Chavez, 135½, San Jose, outpointed Bennie Espinoza, 134, Philippines (10).

FALL RIVER, Mass.—Tony Anthony, 159¼, New York, stopped Tommy Smith, 161½, Providence, R.I. (3).

JOHNSON SCORES PAIR

Habs Boost NHL Lead

There's nothing in the National Hockey League constitution entitling a player to overtime pay, but if Montreal's Tom Johnson puts in a claim today, he's entitled to a sympathetic hearing.

The Canadiens were in dire straits Thursday night when veteran centre Elmer Lach went out with a match penalty and a $100 fine after a stick-swinging episode with right-winger George Armstrong of Toronto Maple Leafs. They were leading 1-0 at the time, but they were fast running out of centres.

Kenny Mosdell and Paul Masnick, the latter a recent draftee from Montreal Royals of the Quebec Hockey League, were the only available pivot-men. So Coach Dick Irvin called on Johnson, a defenseman by trade, to fill in for Lach.

While Johnson was still getting acquainted with his wingers, the Leafs' Eric Nesterenko tied the score, offsetting Mosdell's first-period goal.

SCORES TWICE

That set the stage for the third period, in which the transplanted blue-liner took charge. He fired the two goals, both on passes from Maurice Richard, that gave his club a 3-1 victory. Still taking his regular turn on defense, he helped limit the leafs to a single shot on goal through the entire period.

Johnson's pair of goals gave him four for the season, more than he ever scored in a single year and only one shy of his entire output in three seasons as a Montreal defenseman.

The victory boosted the Canadiens into a four-point lead over the second-place Detroit Red Wings. The Leafs stayed in a third-place tie with Boston Bruins.

Vic High Cage Season Away Tonight

Cheer leaders, a drill team and a band—all the colorful trappings—will be part of the first Victoria High School basketball program tonight at the school gym.

The ban on high school sports having been lifted this week, Vic High will get its winter program away with the annual basketball games between this year's teams and last year's graduates.

This year's senior girls team opens the program against the Grads at 7.30 and the senior boys' Totems meet the male grads in the feature at 9.

Coach George Andrews has been working on his Totems rigorously and will rely heavily on Ed Pederson and Ed Crabbe, only returnees from last year's team, and lanky Paul Simpson.

Laurie Wallace, former Vic High teacher and athletic director, will coach the grads and will fashion his attack around George Dennison, Don Donahue and Bob Abbott.

Totems will be anxious to improve on the record of former Totem teams. Since the annual game was started, the grads have won six out of seven tries, missing only in 1951.

Two Rugby Games Billed Saturday

Two games, one exhibition and one league, are scheduled for play in the Victoria Rugby Union Saturday.

Shawnigan Lake meets Oak Bay Wanderers at Macdonald Park at 2.30 in second-division match while Navy battles James Bay in an exhibition tilt at Navy grounds at 2.15.

Mrs. W. Cotton Takes Golf Trophy

Mrs. W. Cotton defeated Mrs. W. H. Yardley, 2 and 1, to capture the Helen Crowe Cup in a women's medal competition at Colwood Golf Club Thursday. Mrs. M. Rice took first flight honors by edging Mrs. H. Pearce on the 19th hole.

'Bush' No Optimist As Kins Eye Opener

Locals May Be 'Short' In Debut With Alberni

By DENNY BOYD

Fortunately, Busher Jackson is not disposed to tears. Otherwise the taciturn coach of the Victoria Kins might be reduced to weeping over the prospects of meeting Alberni Athletics Saturday night.

Kins, defending champions of the Vancouver Island Senior A Men's Basketball League, open their season Saturday night at Oak Bay Junior High School against their arch-rivals from Canal-Town.

And "Bush" frankly admits, "We haven't got a team yet."

Due to difficulty in securing gymnasiums, Kins have had only two workouts and only one of them has been well attended. That is one of Busher's worries.

The other is that Johnny Clark, a fellow who could lead Kins to a B.C. title if he had a couple of the right kind of running mates, has stated he will not join the team until after Christmas.

Jackson hopes he can dissuade Clark from these plans, but has no hope of John playing Saturday.

Buzz Jacklin, high school star from Nanaimo who is joining the Kins this season, plans to move to Victoria Monday but there is still some doubt as to whether or not he will be available Saturday night. If he does, he will start in Clark's vacated bucket slot. Jacklin, who can control both backboards as well as score in double figures, has not worked out with Kins but has been practicing in Nanaimo.

Last year's second string bucketman, Bill Dobbie, has chucked senior ball and is playing in the junior league, where he is a giant among boys.

Bob Boyes, consistently brilliant guard from last year's senior team, is now in Europe.

Guard Don Hendry has a blood clot in his knee, suffered while playing football for Oak Bay Whitneys. He may be out for a month.

And so, when Jackson says, "This is going to be a tough first game," he is not just whistling "Dixie."

Ah! But Look at the Future

But on the bright side, in a few weeks time Jackson may have the youngest, most-hustlingest team Victoria has seen in many a years. That is his aim.

The accent is on youth this year and Jackson has gone to the high schools for his new players.

Among the newcomers who will be seen Saturday night is George Dennison, star member of last year's Vic High Totems and one of the finest players that Totem coach Porky Andrews has turned out.

And there is George Woollett, another Vic High alumnus and a potent scorer from the bucket. When he recovers from a football-acquired knee injury, Don Donahue, a third ex-Totem, hopes to land a spot on the team.

There is only one veteran among the newcomers but people who know Ralph Anderson know him as a veteran who can hustle any rookie right out of his shoes. Jackson has high hopes for Anderson.

Coming back from last year's team are untiring Elmer Curtis, who is best under pressure; youngsters Bill Bamford and Gerry Parker and set-shot specialist Howie Tooby. This quartette will be busy Saturday night.

Jackson has promised that every player who dresses for this first game will see action before the night is over. Game time is 8.30.

Stamps Club Flyers

Calgary 8, Edmonton 1

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders consolidated their hold on second place in the Western Hockey League race here Thursday night by drubbing Edmonton Flyers 8-1 before 5,142 fans.

Held to a narrow 2-1 lead at the end of the first period, the Stamps scored five straight goals without a reply in the second session. Flyers tightened considerably in the final 20 minutes and held Stampeders to a single goal.

Sharp-shooting Steve Witiuk led the Calgary scoring parade with two goals. Singletons came from the sticks of Sid Finney, Pat Coburn, Art Michaluk, Frank Ashworth, Ray Barry and Fred Hucul. Jim Anderson notched the last-place Flyers' lone marker.

The game featured the traditional Calgary-Edmonton rivalry and was played at a bruising clip. Four of the six penalties went to the Flyers.

QUICK GOALS

The score wasn't too much an indication of the play as it was two quick scoring outbursts that gave the Stampeders their margin. Both came in the second period when they scored two goals within 27 seconds early in the frame and then rapped in two goals within 35 seconds in the late stages.

Moscow Booters Real Friendly

BERLIN (AP) — Moscow's Torpedo soccer team prefaced the month of German-Soviet friendship Thursday by losing 4-2 to a People's Police eleven in East Berlin.

The match, watched by 50,000 despite drizzling rain, was the first of four to be played by Torpedo in East Germany to celebrate the annual "friendship month."

Weather Key Factor In All-Service Grid

National Defense eyes were on the skies today.

Not for signs of hostile aircraft or guided missles. The watch was on the weather and the reason was Saturday's highly-important Victoria Junior Canadian Football League game between Bert Nelson's Navy marauders and Dave Turner's Royal Roads cadets.

The two service clubs, tied for first place in the league standings, tangle Saturday afternoon at Heywood Avenue at 2 in what should be a natural.

The brawny Navy club has an undefeated season while the lone blemish on the cadet record was the 7-5 loss suffered at the hands of Navy in the first meeting between the two clubs. Royal Roads staged a thrilling comeback last week to engineer a 12-12 tie with Oak Bay Whitneys while Navy trounced C&C Taxi Vampires 24-6.

The weather Saturday could be all-important.

A slippery field and a soggy ball could wreak havoc with Navy's extended end runs and might hamper the fine passing of quarterback Cam McIntyre.

On the other hand, Royal Roads, who will be outweighed 10-15 pounds per man, do not have the weight or experienced reserves to stick to the ground for an entire game. It was the cadet passing rather than their running that enabled them to tie last week.

Both clubs have been hit hard by recent injuries.

Royal Roads will be without five of their original 12 first-stringers while Navy has been hit in the blocking back position, both Dave McKenzie and his relief, Ray Hobbs, nursing wonky knees.

Big Four Scramble Highlights Grid Action

Eastern Canada football fans, still slightly ga-ga over the six-touchdown performance of homebrew Lorne Benson of Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Western Conference semifinal, turned today to things closer to home: the play-off scramble in the Big Four and Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Just about everybody who knows a football from a baseball has written off Saskatchewan Roughriders from Grey Cup contention after Benson and the Bombers murdered them Wednesday night at Winnipeg with a 43-5 triumph. They figure Saturday's finale in the total-point semi-finals is just window dressing.

But it's anybody's guess about the Eastern Cup finalist with all Big Four clubs still in the running and a couple of interesting games scheduled for Saturday.

Montreal Alouettes and Hamilton Tiger-Cats, tied at the top of the standings with 12 points, meet at Hamilton and Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders clash at Toronto. Argonauts and Riders are tied for third place with 10 points.

The red-hot Alouettes appeared to have the inside track until last week-end when Ottawa walloped them 30-15 to snap a Montreal three-game winning streak and an Ottawa three-game losing streak.

All clubs have two more games to play after this week-end and it still is possible they could end in a four-way tie in points.

Marciano To Meet Cockell

PARIS (AP) — Rocky Marciano, world heavyweight champion, will fight the British champion, Don Cockell, in a 15-round title bout next June, Al Weill, the world titleholder's manager, said today.

The match will be held either in London or the United States, "wherever we could get more money," Weill said.

The manager made his announcement of the heavyweight bout after a one-hour talk with Jack Solomons, Britain's boxing promoter.

"No final decision on the matter will be taken, however," Weill said, "until I talk with International Boxing Club manager Jim Norris next week at New York."

WHO ELSE? BEN HOGAN NAMED 'GOLFER OF YEAR'

CHICAGO (AP) — Ben Hogan Thursday was voted "professional golfer of the year" by the United States Professional Golfers' Association.

Hogan, winning the award for the fourth time, was named on a record-breaking 803 ballots from PGA members and sports writers. He had a 748 plurality over his nearest rival, Lew Worsham.

Worsham, who holed an eagle 2 wedge shot to win the Tam O'Shanter "world" title and a $25,000 cheque, was mentioned on 55 ballots in the poll. Walter Burkemo, 1953 PGA titlist, was third with 22 votes.

The award capped the 41-year-old Hogan's sensational season of record-shattering performances in the Masters and British Open and his equally brilliant conquest in the United States Open.

RAYNER'S RETURN WITH QUAKERS BRINGS BACK MEMORIES

Once a Favorite Here—But Now?

By BILL WALKER

Claude Earl "Chuck" Rayner will be on the other side of the fence tonight.

Not that "old beetle brows" curried everyone's favor the last time he was here, but he'll be recalled as the most that stood between the Army Hockey Club of 1943 and advancement in the Allan Cup playdowns.

Yes, war-time hockey fans will remember Chuck of the Navy club and now a member of the Saskatoon Quakers of the Western Hockey League who meet the Cougars at Memorial Arena tonight.

A tremendous figure he was then, as he has been since, and undoubtedly still is.

One fan said recently: "I can see him yet—being bombarded by Carse (Bill) Desilets (Joffre) and Kreller (Elmer) in that final series," a series which, incidentally, the Army took in three games and went from there to the cup finals before bowing to Ottawa Commandos.

"Without him (Rayner) the sailors would have been an ordinary team," is a quote from a news story of the day.

But this is 1953, and 10 long years later. Chuck is no cherub any more. The record books say he has passed his 33rd birthday.

A lot has gone by in the intervening years. Chuck disregarded his navy blues and went on to greater glory with the New York Rangers, passing from the NHL scene last year.

From 1945-1946 season to this year, except for a brief whirl with New Haven in 1947-48, he has been with the Broadway blues.

Lorne Worsley took his job away last year as injuries took their toll of his battered frame.

CHUCK RAYNER
. . . he's back

And Chuck seemingly was headed for a coaching berth with the Quakers this year until Doug Bentley decided to keep his stakes anchored in Quakerville.

His best year was the 1949-50 season, when he was awarded the Dr. Hart Memorial Trophy as the most valuable player to his team. That was the year Lynn Patrick guided the Rangers into the Stanley Cup finals against Detroit Red Wings, losing in seven games. Finishing in fourth place, Rangers made the finals by eliminating Montreal Canadiens in five games.

Rayner was named to the alternate all-star club that season, as he was in 1948-49 and again in 1950-51.

However, the following year he ran into the bane of every hockey player's existence in the big time—injuries.

Climax came when he suffered torn ligaments of the left knee in a pile-up with Paul Meger of Montreal and he was on the shelf for the final six weeks of the season.

An operation appeared to restore his old agility, but finally he lost his position to Worsley who since has been replaced by Johnny Bower. Now Worsley is with Vancouver and Rayner has "Gump's" old job at Saskatoon.

He was a tremendous favorite here, was Chuck during the war years. And regardless of the fact that he'll be bidding against Victoria now, he's bound to receive a terrific ovation when he steps on the ice shortly before 8.30, which, as usual is game time.

And Chuck's chores may be doubly difficult in his—what to city fans is a 'homecoming'—as the Quakers haven't won in five starts and the Cougars haven't been beaten in four.

ON THE OUTDOOR FRONT

With ROY THORSEN

Fly-fishing days are back in Saanich Inlet.

Harry Peard, Anchorage Boathouse, reports some good catches were made this week in the inlet by anglers using bucktail flies with a spinner.

"Not good on this side, but pretty wonderful from Bamberton to Mill Bay, and the grilse of a healthy size—about medium," said Harry.

Several persons reported back to the Anchorage with nice fly catches. W. Torrie and H. Evanett scored a basket of 16 grilse. E. Heybroek, father of Bill, and a partner boated the same number. Bill Prior and three others came in Thursday morning with 36 grilse and a coho. Frank Nuttall chose a McKnight spoon for his angling lure. He did as well—two springs and eight grilse.

Hall's Boathouse at the Goldstream end of the sport-fishing arm reported today "fishing is still excellent, although only a few boats are out these days."

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Morland, out twice, had six springs one day and nine the next. They were using abalone spoons from the Goldstream Narrows to the Stone House. Fred Curle and Pat McLean took 10 springs, four grilse on one jaunt. Ed Fong reeling in four springs and three grilse. H. Erickson and J. Pimm posted a catch of 10 springs. They used Hookum spoons.

P. Lunn took a limit, one coho, one spring, eight grilse, all on bucktails. F. G. King had a limit tally of one coho and nine grilse on bucktails.

C. F. Morden caught a nine-pound coho, one spring and four grilse on a No. 4 Tom Mack with two ounces of weight. L. Gordon caught two coho, largest 11 pounds, and one spring. F. Jenson used a Kam Lure and a little weight and boated three springs. Ken Marshall's score was three springs and an eight-pound coho. Mr. and Mrs. Tony Rosin six springs, one coho, largest 11½ pounds. Frank Curtis took a nine-pound spring with a bucktail. Dirk Hudson and P. McLean taking 10 springs, seven grilse.

Wil Wilson, president of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association, speaking at the big "thank you" banquet of the association Saturday, did not forget a bouquet for the people who are seldom seen but do a lot. He paid tribute to the wives of the anglers. "Without the fine tolerance showed by the wives we couldn't make the club what it is today," he said.

Wilson also made special mention of the untiring efforts of secretary George Douglas. "Without him we'd have been lost completely these last two years," said Wilson, who noted that "only those closely connected with the association can realize the terrific amount of work involved in its operation."

Ramblin' about:—

Annual meeting of the VSIAA will be held some time in January. . . . Most pleased man at the banquet was chairman Wes Fulton, who was able to turn over a cheque for $6,008 to Logan Mayhew for the Solarium as a result of the monster Anglers-Times benefit derby last summer. "I couldn't have done it myself. Credit should go to the boys of the committee and if we can get the same team together for next yet we'll top the score that we made this year," said Wes.

This report of the success of a Victoria hunting party a couple of weeks ago will probably bring tears to eyes of frustrated nimrods. A party composed of Tom Zaccarelli, senior and junior, Howard Zaccarelli and Elwood Smith brought back three buck deer and a cougar kitten. Tom Jr., bagged the kitten, also a 130-pound fork buck. Smith's buck went 160 pounds. Howard dropped a spike buck.

Central Saanich may become another closed area to hunters unless those seeking pheasant bags at the present time "smarten up" and obey the "permission" laws in that municipality and stop the car-hunting business. Reeve Sydney Pickles reported to me personally that "we will close this area totally if the boys want to play it that way." . . . Pheasant bags in North Saanich and Salt Spring Island were only considered mediocre. Party of Guy and John Barclay, Phillip Underwood and Bob McLennan were satisfied with their six-bird bag on opening day in the area beyond the airport.

Jack Harris tells us that trout fishing at the headwaters of the Cowichan River was very disappointing last week-end. . . . Ken Buxton's 172-pounder is still heading the parade of bucks entered in the Sylvester U-Drive buck deer competition, reports Jack Roberts. . . . Shawnigan Lake is producing some nice evening catches on the fly. . . . Fishing at Dougan Lake (Cobble Hill) has picked up remarkably well lately. . . . Dake Scott of Oak Bay reports "we haven't seen any fish out this way of late." . . . Esquimalt Harbor is still producing coho. Billy Brown reeled in two last Saturday, young Brian Wood scoring a single. . . . Fishing in upper island lakes and rivers is picking up.

Esks Dominate WIFU All-Stars

By AL VICKERY, Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Seven players from the first-place Edmonton Eskimos and their coach, Darrel Royal, crashed the 1953 Western Interprovincial Football Union all-star offensive team, chosen for the Canadian Press by coaches and sports writers in league cities.

For the first time in Canadian football history, the selectors bowed to these days of highly-specialized football performers and the two-platoon system by also naming a 12-man defensive squad.

Three Saskatchewan Roughriders and two Winnipeg Blue Bombers made up the balance of the offensive team. The tail-end Calgary Stampeders failed to gain an offensive squad berth.

THREE CANADIANS

Three Canadian players made the first or offensive team, compared with two in 1952. They are repeater Bud Korchak, league-leading scorer and flying wing for Bombers, and guard Jimmy Quandametteo and fullback Normie Kwong of the Esks. Besides Korchak, halfback Rollie Miles of Edmonton was the only other holdover from last year's all-stars. Only one player—tackle Martin Ruby of Riders—was picked for both teams.

Starry halfback Billy Vessels of Esks, all-American last year with Oklahoma and voted the outstanding player of the year in the United States, was the sole player named to every ballot.

Here are the teams:

OFFENSIVE TEAM

End: Bud Grant, Bombers.
End: Mac Speedie, Riders.
Tackle: Martin Ruby, Riders.
Tackle: Leon Manley, Esks.
Guard: Jim Quandametteo, Esks.
Guard: Mike Cassidy, Riders.
Centre: Eagle Keys, Esks.
Quarter: Claude Arnold, Esks.
Flying Wing: B. Korchak, Bombers.
Half: Billy Vessels, Esks.
Half: Rollie Miles, Esks.
Fullback: Normie Kwong, Esks.
Coach: Darrel Royal, Esks.

DEFENSIVE TEAM

End: Frank Anderson, Esks.
End: Ezzert Anderson, Stamps.
Tackle: Martin Ruby, Riders.
Tackle: Dick Huffman, Bombers.
Guard: Gordon Brown, Stamps.
Guard: Dean Bandiera, Bombers.
Linebreaker: John Wozniak, Riders.
Linebreaker: Tony Momsen, Stamps.
Half: Neill Armstrong, Bombers.
Half: Ray Willsey, Esks.
Half: Bobby Marlow, Riders.
Half: Tom Casey, Bombers.

FOUR POSITIONS

Never has a team dominated the backfield as have the Esks this year, gaining all positions offensively except flying wing.

Claude, the Cobra, Arnold at quarter is one of the best short passers in the game. The former Oklahoma Sooner's ball handling in the split-T is baffling and his running better than average. He had a wide margin over Jacobs and playing coach Frank Filchock of Riders.

Vessels and Miles, the "bargain basement beauty" from North Carolina, probably give Esks the best one-two punch in Canadian football. Both can run and pass, and both are equally brilliant on defense. Miles missed by only one vote in gaining a defensive all-star berth.

Kwong, the China Clipper who came to Esks by way of Calgary, is more than just a hard-plunging fullback. He has long been one of the most consistent ground gainers in the conference.

In Korchak, the all-stars have one of the best place-kickers in the business, and the stocky Winnipeg-born flying wing, a vital cog in Bombers' drive to the playoffs, also is adept at catching passes.

The selectors had little difficulty in naming ends Speedie and Grant, two seasoned National Football League veterans. Speedie, with Cleveland Browns, and Grant, with Philadelphia Eagles, ranked one-two respectively as offensive ends in the NFL in 1952.

Pie King Scratched

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — The Pie King, British two-year-old champion, today was declared out of the world's richest horse race—Saturday's $250,000 Garden State Stakes.

Ray Bell, co-owner of the British thoroughbred, said Pie King split open the heel of his right front foot Thursday after unseating jockey Tom Gosling in a workout and running through the concrete stable area.

Bell said the condition probably would clear up in about 48 hours. "He is not all right today, and we can't enter him," he asserted.

SUGAR RAY SAYS 'NO' FOR GOOD

WASHINGTON (AP) —Sugar Ray Robinson says he has quit the boxing ring for good.

"I'll never fight again," the ex-champion said Thursday, scotching reports that he was weighing an offer to challenge Bobo Olson, the middleweight titleholder.

Robinson once held the welterweight and middleweight championship but retired last Dec. 18 to take up tap dancing in a song and dance show.

"If I fight again," Robinson said, "it'll be because somebody hit me when I wasn't looking."

Inter-High Junior Rugby Schedule Set

Esquimalt and Oak Bay will kick-off the Victoria High School Junior Rugby League when they meet at Esquimalt's grounds next Thursday.

Schedule, with home team named first, follows:

November 3—Esquimalt vs. Oak Bay.
November 10—Oak Bay vs. V.H.S.

A LITTLE SOUR, PERHAPS?

Canadian Football 'Not Bad'—Albert

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Frankie Albert, back from his first — and what he says is his last — season of Canadian football, thinks any good American professional club would "beat Canada's best team by 35 points."

The former quarterback of the San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League circuit hastened to say that Canadian football was "not bad."

"They have some very good players up there but not enough on any one team to stack up with a good National League team here," the one-time Stanford star said.

Albert joined Calgary Stampeders for a salary of $20,000. He said he voluntarily took a cut, October 1. The club won three, lost 12 and tied one to end up in last place in the Western International Football Union. Admitting he didn't "burn up" the league, the southpaw who sparked the 49ers for years, said:

"I spent most of my time running for my life. There were days when I didn't please the fans or club owners. But there were times when I thought I played some of the best football of my life."

The Calgary team's weakness was in the line, Albert said.

One of Albert's team mates was John Henry Johnson, former St. Mary's and Arizona State back.

"Johnson is as good as Hugh McElhenny and Joe Perry of the 49ers," he declared. "He played 60 minutes of nearly every game and was the main ball carrier. He also was outstanding on defense."

"We travelled first class," he said. "Everything was tops. And the Canadian fans are great."

THE GALLUP POLL

Canadians Dislike Idea Communist China in UN

Should Communist China be given a seat in the United Nations?

The question is up for heated debate among the governments of the world—a debate, says the Gallup Poll, which would be just as heated between different groups of Canadians.

Almost half the people across the country, however, do not know whether Communist China has a seat in the UN—or think, erroneaously, that it now has one. This lack of interest, or knowledge, rises to a proportion in four in seven citizens in the Maritimes and Quebec.

Among those who know that Communist China does not have a seat in the UN there is an overwhelming conviction that it should not be given one. However, the more education a citizen has had, the more likely he is to think the reverse—that the Reds should be a member of the United Nations. Canadians who live in the west, too, believe far more strongly that Communist China should belong than do those in eastern Canada.

First step in measuring what the public itself thinks of this all-important question was to find out how much the average citizen knew about the situation. Question put to an accurate cross-section of the public by Gallup Poll interviewers was this:

"Do you happen to know whether Communist China has or has not a seat in the United Nations?"

Has	8%
Has not	53
Don't know	39
	100%

Those who knew that Red China is not at present a member were then asked:

"Do you think Communist should or should not be given a seat in the United Nations?"

As a whole, Canadians who are informed think this way:

Should have seat	32%
Should NOT have	59
No opinion	9
	100%

Men and women have much the same opinion on the matter, and there is very little difference in thinking among younger and older citizens. But there is a very strong conflict in ideas between the east and west:

	Eastern Canada	Western Canada
Should have seat	27%	39%
Should NOT	65	51
No opinion	8	10

Almost as strong a contrast in opinion is shown between those who have had high school or university training and those who had public or no schooling:

	Public School or None	High School or University
Should have seat	24%	36%
Should NOT	65	55
No opinion	11	9

Gibson's Bowladrome Now Largest In Western Canada

Official opening ceremonies at Gibson's Bowladrome climax many months of work in the expansion of the original building, which was built in 1930, and in renovating the entire premises.

The former building, which housed 20 alleys, was purchased by Mr. J. Achtem in 1950, from Charles Gibson of Winnipeg. Since its purchase, Mr. Achtem has been making plans for the present expansion with a view to bringing Victoria the largest and most modern bowling alleys in the west.

Keenly interested in the sport Eric Smith, manager, states there is no age-line to the sport of bowling. It is enjoyed by the very young as well as the very old. In fact, people up to the age of 84 years are known to be still enjoying the sport of bowling.

The year-around sport of bowling is the most popular in the British Empire and is the largest participating sport in the world today. More people enjoy bowling now than ever before and the popularity of the sport is growing each year.

Besides being the cleanest sport in the world, it provides good wholesome exercise and relaxation from work or business, plus an opportunity for pleasant camaraderia among groups and clubs.

It is interesting to note that women comprise 65% of today's bowlers and spend many mornings and afternoons in get-togethers at the bowling alleys.

Enthusiastic interest is also evident among public and high school students. Mr. Smith hopes to see more activity in this direction and perhaps the formation of children's leagues. He believes the sport of bowling will be a big help in developing an appreciation for good clean sport among the younger generation.

Gibson's Bowladrome offers forty smooth, new alleys — double the accommodation it formerly provided. For the convenience of bowlers there is an adjacent parking area . . . a Board Room for league meetings, ultra-modern rest rooms on both floors, a spacious coffee shop, lockers, etc. The Bowladrome has high ceilings, is well ventilated, and special acoustical plaster absorbs sounds, adding to the comfort and pleasure of patrons.

At least fifty B.C. bowling alley operators will be here for the grand opening. Vancouver the grand opening and operators from Alberta and Saskatchewan. Vancouver operators have chartered a plane in order to attend. Also present will be Mr. Charles Gibson of Winnipeg, one of Canada's leading bowling alley operators, operating 159 bowling alley establishments.

A complete program of activities has been arranged for opening day and a record crowd is expected.

Those under 21 were forbidden to use alcoholic beverages for 18 months and one, 24 years of age, for a year.

Steaks Cheaper Than Sausages at Lakehead

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (BUP)—Steaks sold at 39 cents a pound here today as two chain stores fought a price war that an independent operator said could cost them $80,000.

Eager shoppers who lined up six deep at counters Thursday, cooked luscious steaks that cost less than pork sausages.

The price was started when the Shop-Easy chain opened a new store and offered free steaks to the first 250 customers. The firm also advertised minced beef at 29 cents and sirloin and other steaks at 49 cents a pound.

The rival Safeway squared off for battle and prices plummetted as fast as "spies" could hurry from one store to the other. When the doors closed last night sirloin, porterhouse and T-bone steaks had fallen to 39 cents—less than the "pre-war" price of a pound of pork sausages.

Plans for $5 Million Hospital For Chronics Revealed by Martin

VANCOUVER—A new $5,000,000 chronic care hospital for the Vancouver area was forecast today by Health Minister Eric Martin, following his announcement of a province-wide chronic care program.

Following a speech to the B.C. Hospitals' Association today in which he made a bare announcement of the program, Martin said that discussions are already underway in the Vancouver, Penticton and Nanaimo areas that he hopes will lead to chronic bed hospitals.

He said the government is now prepared to push chronic care construction throughout B.C. either in the form of additions to existing acute general hospital facilities or as separate units.

Although no definite details are prepared, Mr. Martin indicated that high priority would be given to a 500-bed chronic care hospital for the lower mainland, probably situated in Vancouver.

"We hope that the program will lead to establishment of chronic hospitals throughout B.C.," Mr. Martin told the meeting.

He said a formula of assistance to local hospital groups already exists whereby grants can be given to aid in chronic bed construction.

A Warning about Foreign Attachments to Telephones

Telephone subscribers are reminded that the use of telephone attachments unauthorized by the Telephone Company is contrary to regulations governing telephone service. This is pointed out because from time to time certain devices of this kind appear on the market and are offered for sale or for rent to telephone users.

The regulation applying to "non-approved devices" follows:

The subscribers shall not use or permit to be used any electrical or mechanical apparatus or device in connection with the equipment or facilities furnished by the Company without the written consent of the Company, or permit the attachment of advertising devices thereto. If any apparatus or devices of any kind other than those furnished or approved by the Company are attached to or connected with any part of the Company's property, the Company may remove such apparatus or devices or terminate the service.

This regulation is, of course, in the interests of good telephone service and therefore for the protection of telephone subscribers generally. Some attachments to telephones can impair service. And interference with service on one telephone does not stop with that instrument. Others are bound to be affected.

That's why telephone regulations prohibit telephone attachments without the written consent of the Telephone Company.

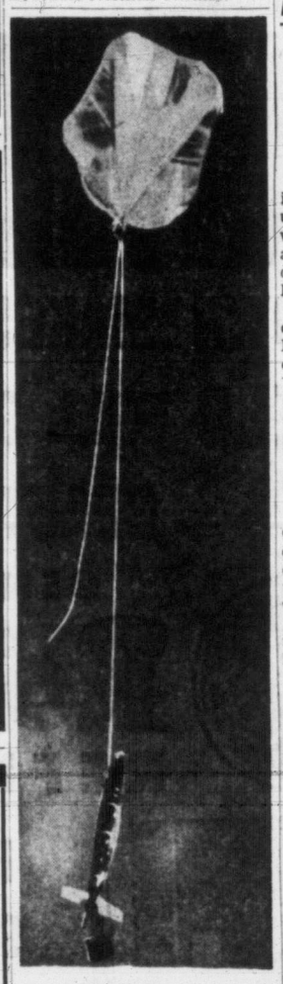
Navy Rehearses Secret Weapons

Naval defenses, which through history have ranged from boarding hooks to cutlasses and 14-inch guns, will have a new addition starting Monday night. All naval personnel at HMCS Naden have been invited to attend classes in judo, the scientific form of wrestling which depends more on agility and leverage than brawn. Here experts CPO Don McCullock, on his feet, and Sub.-Lieut. Robert Fortin, in the air, demonstrate one of the hundreds of effective judo holds. First class will be held Monday night at 7.30 in Naden gymnasium. Both these men are experts.



THIS ROCKET gets a head start from 50 miles up. It is one method of exploring the upper regions of the air for collection of cosmic radiation. Launched from the U.S. icebreaker Staten Island in the Arctic, a 55-foot balloon lifts a "deacon" rocket. At approximately 50 miles, a releasing mechanism sends it miles higher, where its gauges operate.

IN DOWNTOWN AREAS

Plans for Liquor Outlets Revealed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Strong indication that liquor outlets under the new B.C. Liquor Act will be confined to downtown areas of cities was given Thursday by Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

In an address at the annual convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities here, Mr. Bonner outlined the act and explained how "machinery" of the new law will be put into effect.

The first step, he said, will be to establish licensing areas throughout the province. Details of these are being worked out.

"In some places," the attorney-general said, "the licensing areas will be provincial electoral districts, and in others, commercial areas.

"In Vancouver, for instance, it could be very likely confined to Vancouver Centre."

After the licensing areas are set up, applications for one of the four new type licenses will be received. Publication of the applications must be done to allow for petitions asking for a vote among residents affected.

In 35 per cent of the residents petition for a plebiscite, the vote will be held. Plebiscites will also be necessary if requested by municipal councils, Mr. Bonner said.

The attorney-general also revealed that the government plans to institute a program of rehabilitation for B.C.'s 20,000 chronic alcoholics, in conjunction with the new liquor act.

Surrey Reeve New UBCM President; Casey on Board

VANCOUVER (CP) — Reeve Charles Schultz of Surrey was elected president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities at the annual UBCM convention here Thursday.

He was elected by acclamation, to succeed Mayor Robert E. Sang of Cranbrook.

New first vice-president of the organization, which represents 104 cities, districts and villages in the province, is Mayor W. R. Rathbun of Penticton.

Elected to the eight-man executive board were: Reeve A. E. Beasley, North Cowichan; Reeve J. W. Casey, Saanich; Ald. J. W. Cornett, Vancouver; Mayor J. E. Fitzwater, Kamloops; Mayor E. G. Fletcher, Trail; Mayor George Muir, Nanaimo; Mayor Harold Whalen, Prince Rupert, and Mayor Cliff Swan, Kimberley.

48,000 ALCOHOLICS

TORONTO (BUP) — Ontario has an estimated 48,000 abnormal drinkers and 93 per cent are not receiving treatment, an alcoholism survey disclosed today.

Violin-Piano Duo Wins High Praise

Two young people with extraordinary musical gifts, were presented at the Arts Centre Wednesday evening, under sponsorship of the Canadian Federation of Music Teachers' Associations.

They were Mary Lou Dawes, pianist, and Kenneth Perkins, violinist, both of Calgary. The concert was presented as one of the Young Artists' Series, a part of a tour of western towns and cities undertaken by the two musicians.

Local arrangements were made by the B.C. Registered Music Teachers' Association, Victoria Branch.

Brahms' Sonata in A Major for Violin and Piano was a major work on the program and revealed the violinits's rare musical insight and understanding, as well as his technical virtuosity which is well advanced.

His control is not yet perfected but the degree of his skill leaves no doubt as to his future development. Miss Dawes' was an excellent partner, sensitive, blending her talents well with those of the violinist, showing great flexibility and control.

As a soloist, she presented an all-Chopin group which was technically perfectly competent and musically, highly promising. She played the Ballade in A Flat and the Berceuse as well as two Etudes, and as an encore the six Rumanian Dances of Bela Bartok. In the latter she succeeded in capturing the spirit completely and gave a tip-top performance.

Together the artists played Andante and Variation in F minor by Haydn, Concerto in G Minor by Bruch, Clair de Lune and Wieniawski, Scherzo Tarantelle and several encores.

Cuba Bans Current Edition of Time

HAVANA, Cuba (UP)—The government was reported today to have banned the current issue of Time Magazine's Latin-American edition.

An interview concerning Cuba's political situation was understood to be considered "objectionable" by the government. The interview was with Aureliano Sanchez Arango, alleged underground leader of a revolutionary conspiracy and right-hand man of deposed President Carlos Prio Socarras.

Flood Threat Ends In Italy; Death Toll for Week 20

MILAN, Italy (AP)—A bright sun broke over north Italy today, ending a week of intermittent rains and calming fears of a major flood disaster.

Rivers and torrents which Thursday night were still ripping out small bridges and washing away roads began to recede. The Po, which devastated thousands of acres of rich farm land and took 94 lives in 1951, remained at a high level, but officials said the situation now is not alarming.

Three more persons were reported drowned Thursday in racing flood waters, bringing to at least 20 the number of victims of the week of rains and floods. Fifty-five persons lost their lives in southern Italy last week in floods caused by tremendous cloudbursts.

Murderer Seguin Plans Appeal of Death Sentence

CORNWALL, Ont. (BUP)—Henry Seguin, 28, awaited an appeal here today in the jail where he was scheduled to be hanged Jan. 19 for the robbery-murder of taxi operator Leonard Hurd of Maxville, Ont., last year.

"All I can say is that I am completely innocent of this crime," Seguin, the husky laborer said Thursday after he was found guilty by an all-male jury.

Supreme Court Justice F. J. Hurd said the evidence, although circumstantial, pointed strongly to Seguin.

Seguin was arrested early this year in B.C. He is currently serving a 20-year sentence for attempted robbery and attempted murder.

His attorney, D. J. Kelly of Ottawa, said the sentence would be appealed.

Georgian Bay, the eastern arm of Lake Huron, was so named in honor of King George III.

$19,000 'Go Straight' Gift Proves Failure

HOUSTON, Texas (AP)—Alton Franks, 19-year-old former convict who received a $19,000 cash gift from a prison cellmate to help him "go straight," pleaded guilty Thursday to two charges of armed robbery.

Franks was given two 15-year sentences, to run concurrently.

He has been in jail about a dozen times since his May 18 release from prison after serving 18 months on a felony theft conviction.

Franks received the $19,000 "go straight" gift from J. C. Henderson, wealthy Texas rancher who is serving a 50-year sentence for double murder.

TRIUMPH AND TRAGEDY

In Italy Gen. Alexander had resumed the offensive at the end of August. Since then the Eighth Army had suffered about 8,000 casualties and the Fifth Army about 11,000. The Fifty Army had hitherto not been so heavily engaged, but they were expected to attack that very day. In this theatre there was the most representative British Empire army there had ever been. There were in all 16 British Empire divisions, namely, eight British, two Canadian, one New Zealand, one South African, and four British Indian. I explained that I had been anxious lest Gen. Alexander might be short of certain essentials for the vigorous prosecution of his campaign, but I now understand that the Combined Chiefs of Staff had agreed to withdraw nothing from his army until Kesselring's troops had been destroyed or were on the run out of Italy.

Masterminds Roosevelt and Churchill put their heads together during discussions at the Second Quebec Conference.

Share of Victory In Balkans Desired

Gen. Marshall confirmed this undertaking, and I accordingly emphasized that in that case we should have to look for fresh woods and pastures new. It would never do for our armies to remain idle. I said I had always been attracted by a right-handed movement to give Germany a stab in the Adriatic armpit. Our objective should be Vienna. If German resistance collapsed we should of course be able to reach the city more quickly and more easily. If not I had given considerable thought to aiding this movement by capturing Istria and occupying Trieste and Fiume. Another reason for this right-handed movement was the rapid encroachment of the Russians into the Balkan peninsula and the dangerous spread of Soviet influence there.

Certain trouble makers said that we would take no share in the war against Japan once Germany had been defeated. Far from shirking this task, the British Empire was eager to play the greatest possible part. We had every reason for doing so. Japan was as much the bitter enemy of the British Empire as of the United States. British territory had been captured in battle and grievous losses had been suffered. The offer I now made was for the British main fleet to take part in the major operations against Japan under United States Supreme Command. We should have available a powerful and well-balanced force. We hoped that by the end of 1945 this would include our newest battleships. A fleet train of adequate proportions would be built up, making the warships independent of shore-based resources for considerable periods.

No Mention Made Of King's Stand

The President intervened to say that the British Fleet was no sooner offered than accepted. In this, though the fact was not mentioned, he overruled Admiral King's opinion.

I continued that as a further contribution to the defeat of the enemy, the Royal Air Force would like to take part in the heavy bombardment of Japan. A bomber force of no mean size could be made available, and would feel honored to share with their American colleagues the dangers of striking at the heart of the enemy. As for land forces, when Germany had been beaten we should probably be able to send six divisions from Europe to the East, and perhaps six more later on. In Southeast Asia we had sixteen divisions, which might ultimately be drawn upon.

The President thanked me for this review, and said it was a matter of profound satisfaction that at each succeeding conference between the Americans and British there had been ever-increasing solidarity of outlook and identity of basic thought. Added to this there had always been an atmosphere of cordiality and friendship. Our fortunes had prospered, but it was still not quite possible to forecast when the war with Germany would end. One more big battle would have to be fought, and our operations against Japan would to some extent depend on what happened in Europe.

The President agreed that we should not remain in Burma any longer than was necessary to clean up the Japanese in that theatre. The American plan was to regain the Philippines and to dominate the mainland of Japan from there or Formosa, and from bridgeheads which would be seized in China. If forces could be established on the mainland of China, China could be saved. American experience had been that the "end run" method paid a handsome dividend. Rabaul was an example of this by-passing technique which had brought considerable success at small cost of life. Would it not be possible, he asked, to by-pass Singapore by seizing an area to the north or east of it, such as Bangkok?

I said that all these projects were being examined and would be put in order. No decision could be reached until after we had taken Rangoon.

I then cast back to make sure where we stood, and asked for a definite undertaking about employing the British Fleet in the main operations against Japan.

"I should like," said the President, "to see the British Fleet wherever and whenever possible."

Admiral King said that a paper had been prepared for the Combined Chiefs of Staff, and the question was being actively studied.

"The offer of the British Fleet has been made," I repeated. "Is it accepted?"

Yes," said Mr. Roosevelt.

"Will you also let the British Air Force take part in the main operations?"

Here it was much more difficult to get a direct answer. Marshall said that General Arnold and he were trying to see how to use the greatest number of aircraft they could. "Not so long ago," he explained, "we were crying out for planes. Now we have a glut. If you are going to be heavily engaged in South-East Asia and Malaya, won't you need most of your Air Force? Or is Portal's plan to bomb Japan something quite separate?"

Lancaster Range Close to B-29s'

"Quite separate," answered Portal. "If our Lancaster bombers are refueled in the air they can go nearly as far as your B-29s."

I said that for the sake of good relations, on which so much depended in the future, it was of vital importance that the British should be given their fair share in the main operations against Japan.

During the days which followed I had a number of conversations with the President and his advisers. I had been surprised to find when I arrived at Quebec that the President was accompanied by Mr. Morgenthau, the Secretary of the United States Treasury, though neither the Secretary of State nor Harry Hopkins was present. But I was glad to see Morgenthau, as we were anxious to discuss financial arrangements between our two countries for the period between the conquest of Germany and the defeat of the Japanese. The President and his Secretary of the Treasury were however much more concerned about the treatment of Germany after the war. They felt very strongly that military strength rested on industrial strength. We had seen during the nineteen thirties how easy it was for a highly industrialized Germany to arm herself and threaten her neighbors, and they asserted that there was no need for so much manufacturing in a country as large as Germany, which could to all intents and purposes feed herself. The United Kingdom had lost so many overseas investments that she could only pay her way when peace came by greatly increasing her exports, so that for economic as well as military reasons we ought to restrict German industry and encourage German agriculture. At first I violently opposed this idea. But the President, with Mr. Morgenthau—from whom we had much to ask—were so insistent that in the end we agreed to consider it.

Morgenthau Plan Not Even Practical

The so-called Morgenthau Plan, which I had not time to examine in detail, seems to have carried these ideas to an ultra-logical conclusion. Even if it had been practical I do not think it would have been right to depress Germany's standard of life in such a way; but at that time, when German militarism based on German industry had done such appalling damage to Europe, it did not seem unfair to agree that her manufacturing capacity need not be revived beyond what was needed to give her the same standards of life as her neighbors. All this was of course subject to the full consideration of the War Cabinet, and in the event with my full accord the idea of "pastoralizing" Germany did not survive.

We held our last meeting at midday on Saturday, September 16. The Combined Chiefs of Staff had now completed their final report to the President and myself, and at Mr. Roosevelt's request Admiral Leahy read it out to us paragraph by paragraph.

On Sunday, September 17, I left Quebec by train with my wife and daughter Mary to pay a farewell visit to the President at Hyde Park.

After dinner I left for New York, and boarded the Queen Mary the following morning. The voyage home was without incident. We arrived in the Clyde on September 25, and left immediately by train for London.

Old Tales of War, Like Wine, Improve As Years Go By

Vivid war tales, some of them improving with age, were told at Lougheed's Banquet Hall Thursday night at the annual reunion of the 114th Veterans' Guard.

For some, many forgotten incidents came rushing back as a buddy recalled "such-and-such at so-and-so."

Helping to bring back memories for the old soldiers was a graphic film, "Lest We Forget," which showed the Canadians in action in France and Belgium in the First World War.

J. C. Dowds was elected president of the association, succeeding Les Scott. Bill Hudson was named vice-president and Clem Gill, secretary-treasurer.

Mexico's President Proves Hard to See

By LLOYD BAKER
Times City Editor

MEXICO CITY — President Ruiz Cortines seldom invites dignitaries visiting from other countries for interviews.

Canada's Minister of Health and Welfare, the Hon. Paul Martin, learned this during a visit here at the beginning of the week.

He was visiting Mexico as a member of a party of eastern Canadians who flew from Montreal on the first flight of a new Trans-Canada Air Lines service to Mexico City.

A group of western Canadian newspapermen and radio broadcasters on the inaugural flight of a Canadian Pacific Air Lines non-stop service from Vancouver to Mexico City and Lima, Peru, met the eastern party.

The two groups took part in a wreath-laying ceremony at the Monmument of Independence on the Paseo de la Reforma to mark the linking of the two countries by separate and regular airliner service.

Mr. Martin was the key figure in the ceremony with the new Canadian ambassador to Mexico, His Excellency Jules Leger.

It was learned from high-ranking government officials that the office of the president was approached with a view to arranging a meeting between Mr. Cortines and Mr. Martin prior to the ceremony.

Excuse given for what some officials fear might be taken as a slight to Canada was that the president was too busy with other affairs of state.

PRESIDENT R. CORTINES

It is also stated that President Cortines is "a very shy man who shuns publicity."

A request from west coast newsmen in the CPAL party for a press conference with the president was turned down.

A 6,000-mile cruise under sail to Hawaii, leaving Victoria Dec. 1, is planned for the 58-foot schooner Black Dog.

There is room aboard for two or three men with five months to spare and $1,000 to contribute toward financing the voyage.

Black Dog's owner and skipper, William Tellier of Victoria, has two companions already signed on for the cruise. They are Jim Grainger, Toronto, and John Rice, Seattle. The three had originally planned an 18-month round-the-world trip, but were unable to find other crew members with enough time to spare for the longer jaunt.

NO CUT IN JAPANESE IMPORT TARIFFS, ABBOTT PROMISES

MILLTOWN, N.B. (BUP)—The Canadian government has no intention of lowering the tariff on Japanese textiles and allow them to undercut the already distressing Canadian industry, a public meeting was told in this textile centre yesterday.

A. Wesley Stuart, MP for Charlotte County, read telegrams from Labor Minister Milton Gregg and Finance Minister D. C. Abbott. Both cabinet members said the government was well aware of the consequences of a lower tariff on Japanese goods and that there was no plan to cut the rates.

Interim Government Planned For Guiana by Mid-December

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (Reuters) — An interim government to replace the deposed Leftist regime of Premier Cheddi Jagan will be established in this troubled British South American colony in mid-December, Chief Secretary John Gutch announced Thursday.

The interim government will consist of a single chamber legislature and an executive council headed by Governor Sir Alfred Savage.

Gutch said the necessary amendments to Guiana's suspended constitution will probably be presented in the House of Commons in London next week.

The interim government will succeed Jagan's leftist Peoples Progressive party regime which was ousted when the colony's constitution was suspended over an alleged Communist plot to turn this colony into a Communist state.

Gutch, who returned from London Wednesday night, said the decision on whether PPP leaders would be prosecuted depended on the availability of evidence and the views of the attorney-general.

Railroad Death Inquiry Delayed

Inquest into the death of George Gibson, killed Wednesday night when struck by an E & N freight train near Chemainus, was adjourned Thursday pending arrival of railroad investigators.

Opened at Duncan, it is expected to reconvene in Chemainus Monday at 2 p.m.

It is believed Gibson, 69, was deaf and did not hear the train's warning whistle as he walked along the railroad tracks. By the time the engineer realized the victim could not hear, it was too late to stop the train, police understood.

Services Sunday In Abbey After Long Closure

LONDON (Reuters) — Westminster Abbey will reopen for divine services on Sunday after what is believed to be the longest period it has ever been closed for public worship in its 1,000-year history.

The historic Abbey was closed at the start of this year to begin the long task of preparation for the Coronation. After the Coronation it was opened briefly to enable members of the public to view the fabulous setting in which the rites were held.

Since June, workmen have been busy removing the special stands and equipment and replacing the seating.

About 700 workmen who have handled jobs in the Abbey will attend a special service Sunday morning marking the completion of their task.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Rita Hayworths' lawyer disclosed Thursday that her former husband, Moselm Prince Aly Khan, has demanded that their 3½-year-old daughter Yasmin be returned to Europe immediately because of threats against her life.

Bartley Crum, representing the actress who married singer Dick Haymes two months ago, said Prince Aly cabled her he wants their daughter for safekeeping "because the FBI is not adequate to protect her."

Jane's Naval Textbook Hails Atomic Subs

LONDON (Reuters)—Jane's on naval power, say the United States' construction of two atomic - powered submarines marks the start of a new era of ship propulsion.

It says:

"The application of nuclear energy will make sea power more formidable than ever before by giving every vessel so equipped the capacity for travelling vast distance without refuelling."

The new edition of Jane's, published today says the development may produce changes "as profound as the conversion from sail to mechanical power."

It says atomic propulsion could have far-reaching effects not only in the field of naval architecture but also on naval strategy.

Jane's says the use of guided missiles also "opens up new horizons."

Jane's says Russia with 370 submarines already in service, is building 100 more, all equipped with "snorkel" breathing devices enabling them to travel immense distances underwater. It says the Russian Navy now has 520,000 officers and men.

The book says the Royal Navy has become dated "as regards the bigger ships." It says no battleships, aircraft carriers, cruisers or destroyers have been ordered since the Second World War. Three carriers, Fighting Ships, leading textbook ordered during the war, are under construction.

To dispel any "undue alarm," however, it adds that since the war Britain has carried out an "immense" program of conversion, reconstruction and modernization.

"The Royal Navy is still the second largest navy in the world, second only to that of the United States," says Jane's.

False Teeth Need A Special Cleanser

Don't Brush Your Plates! Soak Them in Polident As Dentists Suggest

Polident is the recommended way to clean dentures, banish Denture Breath. Just follow these easy rules.

1. Never use a brush on them! Your dental plates are much softer than natural teeth. Brushing wears down fitting ridges so they get loose.

2. Never use soap or toothpaste! They can leave film which collects bacteria and food particles, a major cause of offensive "Denture Breath".

3. Use a soaking-type cleanser made for false teeth only . . . Polident! Polident cleanser is recommended by more dentists than any other. No brushing, no handling of soapy plates. Polident gets where a brush can't reach.

Best of all, Polident always leaves false teeth odor free. Get the world's largest selling denture cleanser, Polident, at your drug counter. D-133

WATER COSTS PLENTY

You may have sung that song about "cool water". On the Sahara desert you might trade your camel for a cup of it. But just in case you think this has nothing to do with you—in the next few days you may pay a lot more than you expect for cool water.

The trouble with water is, it gets too cool in the wrong places. For instance, water got too cool in Mr. Smith's car radiator last year—and he paid $29.50 for frost damage repairs. Mr. McDonald also paid a big repair bill of $59.75 which included replacing parts and extensive welding. From coast to coast there were thousands more.

The funny thing is, in spite of repeated reminders the same thing happens year after year. Folks, like yourself, who are normally cautious, play a long shot with the water in the radiator of your cars . . . and come the cold weather you lose. It may be a throw-back to the days when all anti-freeze boiled away. But you don't have to take these chances now, that's for sure. You can put Chryco Glycol anti-freeze in your rad today—and whether it freezes tonight or stays "Indian Summer" warm for weeks, you can be sure that your rad and engine block will be fully protected—because Chryco Glycol won't boil away. We repeat—Chryco Glycol anti-freeze won't boil away—even in warm weather!

So why wait for the rush—when mechanics are busy fixing busted rads—and the junk-man does a land - office business lugging damaged parts away? It costs no more to get your Chryco Glycol now—and it may cost you a pretty penny less. But that's not all. Chryco Glycol contains a rust-resistor which prevents your rad and engine parts from rusting, as well as giving complete protection against frost-damage. You have a double gain for sure—and no risk of loss. So, while you are thinking about it—just drop in to your Chrysler-Plymouth-Fargo or Dodge-DeSoto dealer's place. Don't be a sucker and contribute to the annual Jack Frost fund, for a damaged cooling system. Get Chryco Glycol today—it won't boil away!

Former Polish Envoy Threatens Hunger Strike if Asylum Refused by Canada

REGINA (CP)—Michael Krycun, former Polish consul at Winnipeg, Thursday threatened to go on a three-day hunger strike if he and his family are not granted political asylum in Canada.

In a letter to the Regina Leader-Post from Winnipeg, Mr. Krycun said the hunger strike will begin November 5. Mr. Krycun resigned his consular position some time ago following a disagreement with the Polish government.

In Ottawa, the immigration department said Mr. Krycun's application for political asylum still is being considered.

The former Polish consul was granted a six months temporary entry permit September 11.

His case is to be reviewed and a decision rendered some time before the permit expires.

LONDON (CP) — The play "23rd Mission" by the Montreal author and reporter Lionel Shapiro is being presented on BBC television November 11. The Remembrance Day play is the second of Shapiro's performed on the BBC within a short time.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

I see where a learned physician, name of Dr. William G. Leaman Jr., of Philadelphia, has come up with the observation that women are by no means the weaker sex.

In fact, this observation, complete with documentary evidence, was printed on page one of yesterday's paper.

So this is page one news?

Hah! Any fool can plainly see women are regarded as the weaker sex only because they are wise enough to wish to be so regarded.

Sit still for a moment while I tell you about Grandmother Monteith, who used to live on Maitland Street in this city.

My Grandmother Monteith was slightly larger than a button. At a guess, I would say she'd weigh in at 85 pounds.

As I remember it, My Grandmother Monteith presided over a kitchen not quite as large as a modern three-room apartment. The focal point of which was a wood-burning range lurking in menace across one full wall.

This range was fed by wood chopped by my grandfather, when he remembered, which was seldom. The rest of the time my grandmother not only lugged it in, she chopped it as well.

About 25 feet away from the kitchen door was the washhouse. In it was another, smaller stove, on which grandmother heated water for the washing.

She carried out the sheets, shirts, underclothes, towels, and whatever else needed cleansing, in a huge basket. She returned to the kitchen, and carried out a washtub full of water, which she put on the stove. She lit the fire (with kindling she'd chopped herself), heated the water in the tub, washed the clothes by hand, ran them through a mangle, hung 'em out to dry on a stationary clothes line (no nonsense about pulleys) and, to save steps, kept going as far as the chicken coop to collect eggs for the next morning's breakfast.

I haven't time or space to complete the picture here, but for a few additional glimpses of the "weaker sex" in action, picture grandmother corralling a non-laying hen for Sunday dinner; wringing neck of same; plucking, drawing, and cooking it; and to make sure Sunday dinner would be a success, giving grandfather his weekly shave—with a straight-edged razor, of course.

For the benefit of any constituent who may still be with me, I will now get to the point.

My Grandmother Monteith—all four feet 10 inches of her—remains as my earliest recollection of the "weaker" sex.

However, the weaker sex has progressed since her time.

The weaker sex now looks at an electric range, advertised as fully automatic, and sneers "that isn't really automatic—you have to turn on a switch."

The weaker sex never has been weaker.

'PARIS CABBIE EEZ PIKER', JAUNTY MEXICAN JEHUS PROVE

Lloyd Baker is a member of a party of Canadian newspaper and radio men who traveled on the inaugural flight of Canadian Pacific Air Lines service from Vancouver to Mexico City and Lima, Peru. The party is spending a week in Mexico City before continuing to South America. Here he gives some impressions of Mexico.

By LLOYD BAKER
Times City Editor

MEXICO CITY—We missed the bull fight but we went for a taxi ride through downtown Mexico and probably got just as big a thrill.

The bull fights were cancelled when a day of mourning was ordered following the crash of an airliner which killed 22 Mexican newspaper men.

We had been told Mexican cab drivers could teach a thing or two to the notoriously wreckless Paris chauffeur. We don't doubt it a bit.

To begin, traffic in Mexico City is harum-scarum with inside lane passing on streets where painted lanes are conspicuous by their absence. The streets themselves vary greatly. Some are wide and smooth, many narrow with pavement in great need of repair. You frequently see pot holes two feet deep.

There are some one-way streets and many roundabouts which make Victoria's Fountain Circle small potatoes. Streets come at you from eight and nine different directions. And there are no traffic lights.

Instead of the automatic signals (there are a few here and there through the city) Mexico has a large army of policemen who stand at the intersections on a platform, protected from the torrid October sun and frequent late-afternoon rain squalls by a hexagon - shaped corrugated iron umbrella.

They blow their whistles, changing their position on the platform to indicate stop and go. When they are facing you, traffic comes to a squealing halt.

The traffic officers, incidentally, wear a uniform not unlike that of the U.S. army officer.

The types and mechanical conditions of the taxis very as much as the roads. They all are American cars which are shipped here from the U.S. in parts and assembled in large modern plants.

You may get a beat-up old hot-rod or a beautiful, sparkling eight-passenger limousine.

It doesn't seem to make much difference in the ride, though.

The driver of both types gets away from the curb in the best jack-rabbit start you ever did see, and you are "away to the races!"

They weave in and out showing no regard to pedestrians who jump for their lives with a grin.

Mexicans, wherever you go, always appear to have a smile whether they are the poorest of the poor (the poverty is sickening), one of the growing middle-class, or of the fabulous rich. (A guide was telling us the story of a furniture manufacturer whose staff has grown in two years from six to 1,800).

The cabbie pays heed to the traffic whistle, though, which is good for the brake-lining business.

He drives at 40, 50 and sometimes more miles per hour in his weaving way, darting the car through openings in the masses of vehicles where you'd swear two bicycles couldn't pass. Once through, more than likely he'll have to tramp on the brake pedal, and if the passenger isn't already cowering on the floor, he'll be there now.

Unlike his French counterpart, he uses the horn little. In night driving he uses his headlights a great deal, flickering the beams to give warning at intersections.

Sometimes it works. Other times—we missed but we'll never know how or why.

Strangely enough, you don't see the number of buckled fenders and scratched paint that you'd expect. Mexican taxi drivers have a charmed life, obviously.

INDIAN CHIEF CLAIMS NAVY TRESPASSING

Magazine Built on Reserve, He Says

South Vancouver Island Indians are up in arms today over transfer of two pieces of reservation land at Rocky Point, site of the Navy's huge new magazine, to the Department of National Defense.

Chief Jasper Charles of the Belcher Bay Band, said the transfer of the band was made by the Indian Affairs Department to the Royal Canadian Navy without informing and consulting any members of the tribe, which he claims they own.

"Even now I haven't been officially informed of the transfer," said the chief. "I've been told by a guard at Rocky Point that I was trespassing if I went on the reserve as it now belonged to the national defense department.

300 ACRES INVOLVED

The two reserves, situated about 17 miles from Victoria, involve about 300 acres of land. They are surrounded by national defense property under the jurisdiction of the Royal Canadian Navy.

The 53-year-old chief has a home and some sheep on one of the reservations.

"The action of the Indian department shows a complete disregard for the feelings of the Indians," said the chief.

"It is no laughing matter," he added. "How would a white man feel if he found his house and property had been sold without his knowledge? He would be mad."

The chief said he has approached "certain" officials to inquire into the matter.

Meanwhile, the Royal Canadian Navy said it knew nothing about the details of the transaction, but is under the impression that the reservations are now part of their property.

"As far as we are concerned the land belongs to us," said a navy official.

The Indian agent at Duncan said he has not been informed yet of the transfer.

Thieves Use Window Route on Raids

Police think young gangsters raided Dick Kosteriva's service station in Saanich Thursday night. The proprietor agrees. "It would be a boy who got through this hole," he says, demonstrating. "I couldn't." (Times Photo.)

Youthful Gang Held to Blame For Break-Ins

Eight break-ins in the past 48 hours are blamed by police on a gang of "young hoodlums" operating in the Victoria and Saanich areas.

City police reported four widely separated premises entered, the loot small, during Thursday night and Wednesday night city and Saanich police reported four further break-ins.

The police belief is that the same gang has engineered all entries.

Police say that judging from holes smashed in some windows only a small man or boy could get through.

"We are not discounting the possibility that some gang is using a small boy to ransack business shops," police said.

It would appear that in all the break-ins the burglars are after cash.

Richest return was from the service station operated by Dick Kosteriva, at Douglas where Boleskine Road meets Saanich Road.

Someone broke in during the night and got $20 in change from the till, stole about $50 worth of tools and finished up by dumping a bag of tire talc over the floor.

A hole was punched in a window on the north side of the garage through which only a small body could pass. It was not a window which could be opened. Preliminary efforts had been made to pry the window open, Constable Robert Adrian of Saanich police reported.

Another Saanich entry during the night was reported at Fred Borden's service station and garage at Quadra and Reynolds Road.

"They only took about 25 cents in coppers left in the cash register," Mr. Borden said. A section of a window on the east side was knocked out to gain entry. This garage was entered about two years ago. Constable Harry Adams of Saanich police is investigating.

Belief is that the same burglars who broke into the High School Coffee Shop, 1395 Gladstone, during the night, were scared off. There was evidence according to city detective Richard Berry, that an attempt had been made to pry open the box containing the money in the music machine.

An attempt was made to enter the premises of Canadian Liquid Air Co., 1919 Douglas, but nothing was reported missing. A rear window was jemmied.

The four other break-ins occurred in the city the previous night, the burglars only netting about $1.50 in pennies and some candy from a downtown cafe.

Benjamin Fish, 821 Broughton, pleaded guilty in city police court today to a charge of unlawfully consuming liquor in a public place. He was fined $50. The default of payment of fine was one month in jail.

POLITICAL PARTIES PREPARING TO WOO YOUNG VOTERS OF B.C.

By DON INGHAM

B.C.'s major political parties are shining up their "welcome" signs for the 19 and 20-year-old voters.

Some samples of the party lures will come to light in the campaign for the Nov. 24 by-election here, when the young voters will go to the polls for the first time in the province.

They will also apply to people as young as 15 years, who will vote in the next general election.

Parties are uncertain, wary and diffident in their approach to this age group, which is an unknown quantity and could be a deciding factor in any election.

Gist of party opinion is as follows:

"We want the young people to hear what we have to say. We also want them to discuss and understand current problems, and make up their own minds. In the process, we hope they will find our party is the best."

"Lowering the voting age is a terrific revitalizing influence for us," said Donald Anderson, president of the Young Liberal Association. "Up to now there has been no large young group with the franchise. Now we have something to work on."

He suggested Victoria College have representatives of all major parties address students, and let them make up their own minds as to which party policy they approve.

"We want young people to see what we have to offer, but must make our approach attractive," he said. "Older people have nothing better to do than go to a meeting, but youngsters can be choosey. We'll have to compete with shows, skating parties, games and everything else."

Probably most advanced in the field is the CCF which for years has cast a benevolent eye on the Co-Operative Commonwealth Youth Movement.

"The CCYM has no connection with the parent body," said Frank Snowsell, former MLA. "It was started by young people themselves to give them a chance to view current problems and arrive at their own conclusions regarding them. Their meetings feature business sessions, social activities, and discussion periods."

Social Credit also has a group of about 25 young people formed some time ago, and which the party hopes to see as nucleus of a movement.

"All we want them to do is think for themselves and vote intelligently—apart from politics," a party spokesman said.

Deane Finlayson, provincial Progressive Conservative leader, said 'teen-agers had been party members for some time.

"We want their support, and want them in our party, he said.

"I caution our young voters, however, not to allow themselves to become regimented in any political party or movement that attempts to close their minds to all but one political philosophy," he said.

VICTORIA WET, OTHERS WETTER

Rain that began Thursday at 8 p.m. likely will continue overnight and into Saturday, the weatherman predicts.

By 10 a.m. today 0.5-inch had fallen here, he said. During the same period, rainfall at Patricia Bay was 0.17-inch, and at Vancouver .78-inch.

Winds will be about 15 miles per hour Saturday, and temperatures will range between 45 and 55 degrees.

Revised Rolston Formula May Reach House in 1955

The provincial government's controversial Rolston Formula, which provides an entirely new system of education financing, may be vastly changed before presentation to the Legislature again.

It was learned today the government is taking a second look at the proposal which has been under fire ever since introduction in the Legislature last spring. The plan brought about the minority Socred government's defeat on the floor of the Legislature.

The government, it is understood, is considering the chief objections to the formula and it may be a watered down version which will eventually be instituted in B.C.

Because of the study of a revised formula there is speculation the government may not reintroduce it to the House until 1955.

Basis of the Rolston Formula is the equalization of assessments for school purposes throughout B.C. This met unanimous approval because it has been long sought.

But the opposition has been directed at the formula's plan for apportionment of school costs between the government and the municipalities.

HEAVIER COSTS

Critics have claimed the plan will mean heavier school costs for municipalities.

Under the Rolston Formula, the government will keep all proceeds from the 3 per cent sales tax. This means the municipalties would lose their one-third share—about $11,000,000.

The formula is based on 1952 school costs, and provided for a provincial grant equal to the 1952 school budget less the amount that could be raised by a levy of nine mills on 100 per cent of land and 75 per cent of improvements in municipalities. In rural areas there would be an eight mill levy on the same basis.

If school budgets increased above the 1952 level the government would pay supplementary grants amounting to 75 per cent of the boosts in rural areas, 50 per cent in most municipalities but only 25 per cent in Vancouver.

Small Income Group Anxious To Boost Chest Revenues

Concern for the lagging Community Chest drive is felt most by the people who can least afford to give, according to campaign chairman, Courtney Haddock.

"Every day I am stopped by old age pensioners and others in small income groups," he says.

"Some say they were missed in the canvass, others say they want to increase an earlier donation."

"They keep bringing in small amounts, while the hoped-for heavy givers of the industrial-commercial division are still largely to be heard from," he added.

Collection points for second-thought givers have been set up at Woodward's Store, Chest headquarters at Spencer House, the Royal Trust Company at 1205 Government and the Dominion Bank at Yates and Douglas.

Mr. Haddock feels the $210,686 target will be met, but today's total still hovers at the $167,000 marks, 79 per cent of objective.

An important statement concerning the campaign is expected following an emergency meeting of the Red Feather planners today.

The drive is directed currently at increasing returns from the industrial-commercial group which as yet is only 30 per cent subscribed.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

A large packing-case, 7 ft. by 7 ft. by 7 ft., was stowed close up against the warehouse wall. On top of it was stowed a smaller case, measuring 4 ft. by 4 ft. by 4 ft. A straight ladder, placed with its foot on the floor and its head up against the wall immediately above the two cases, just touched the edge of each case. How long was the ladder?

APOLOGY: Many readers have written, telephoned and even called in person to complain about a gross distortion of the truth about the population of Bourne on Wednesday last week. I can only express my regrets for a typing error: there are certainly 400 males in this village, but they are by no means all blue-eyed as the copy incorrectly said. A few of you kind readers, having rather more confidence in me than is really justified, scorned to accuse me of making a mistake, but found solutions in terms of part-men, surgical freaks and so on: to those loyal Victorians I say "Thank you."

Psychiatric Aid Urged in Assault Case

Robert Allen Given Two-Year Sentence

Robert H. Allen, 31, of Victoria, in the last sitting of Criminal Assize Court today, was sentenced to two years hard labor on a charge of indecent assault involving a juvenile girl.

However, psychiatric treatment was urged by Crown Prosecutor W. H. M. Haldane, QC, and Mr. Justice H. S. Wood concurred.

In addition, he received one year hard labor, to run concurrently, on three other charges of common assault involving juvenile girls.

Four character witnesses testified before Mr. Justice Wood of the previous good character of the accused. He is married and the father of a child.

The offense for which Allen drew sentence took place in Stadacona Park June 6. There he accosted a 13-year-old girl, in the ladies' washroom, representing himself as a detective searching for narcotics.

The one-year concurrent sentence for common assault arose from his approaches to three 'teen-age girls in Saanich on July 16.

Belmont Civic Spirit 'Blazing'

By PETE LOUDON

One of the biggest bonfires and brightest displays of fireworks to mark Halloween in Greater Victoria will take place Saturday night on the beach at Esquimalt Lagoon.

Hosts to an estimated 1,000 children will be the Belmont Park council, on behalf of the 365 families in the naval housing division there.

The parents of Belmont take community enterprise seriously. It could be because the "Dad" in every family works for the same boss, the RCN, or it might be because the little community is geographically apart from other neighborhoods of this district, thus more interdependent.

A psychologist might explain the high sense of civic pride at Belmont by pointing out that a serviceman is normally cut off from any part in municipal life. Given a place like Belmont and a chance to create and share in his own community government, he tries to make up for lost time.

Whatever the reason, the residents of Belmont Park can show the way to many an older community, and not just in organization of Halloween parties.

Take, for instance, the annual election of the council. Belmont mustered an 85 per cent vote. And actually, Belmont council is only a neighborhood association, not a governing body. In the City of Victoria, where election of a council affects every phase of a citizen's life, less than 30 per cent of the registered voters turned out last year.

Even more astonishing — 61 persons ran for office this month to represent six wards in the sailortown community organization!

The Parent-Teachers' Association draws crowds numbered in three figures to regular meetings in the John Stubbs Memorial School. On Sunday, almost 1,000 children troop there for undenominational Sunday school classes.

How long does it take to build a community spirit like that? The first families moved into Belmont just over two years ago.

ASK The TIMES

Q. In the provincial election of June, 1952, did British Columbians vote only for a change in the liquor laws, or was there also some mention on the ballot of serving liquor by the glass? H.F.

A. The question on which those voting "yes" gave a majority read: "Are you in favor of the sale of spirituous liquor and wine by the glass in establishments licensed for such purpose?"

Q. Did a steamer named Iroquois ever ply between Puget Sound and Victoria? B.H.G.

A. Yes, for years. A twin-funnel vessel, she was in service as long ago as September, 1912, when she was advertised as "Morning steamer for Seattle and Tacoma," by way of Port Angeles and Port Townsend. A mishap occurred on October 4, 1913. The Daily Times of that date said: "Failure to make the turn at Pin Rock dolphin (opposite the Victoria Chemical Works) in a dense fog resulted in the Ss. Iroquois of the International Steamship Co. running aground and remaining for several hours. It required considerable tugging by the CPR Ss. Princess Royal before she was released and completed her trip up the Inner Harbor.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Pumpkins and Apples . . . Everyone's Buying 'Em!

By PENNY SAVER

Big ones, little ones, medium-size ones . . . everywhere you go you see pumpkins and everywhere you go they're a different price! Working it out, I'd say the average price is about two pounds for 9 cents. That's quite a drop from the price of 15 cents for the same amount two weeks ago. So, with Halloween in the offing, get yours today!

* * *

At first glance I thought the seedless green grapes had taken a 10-cent drop in price . . . but on closer examination I found that I was confusing them with the larger, muscat grapes which look almost exactly the same. . . . 15 cents a pound.

* * *

There's a profusion of McIntosh red apples around this week. Guess everyone's buying them up for Halloween handouts. They're staying at the same price that they've been for the past month or so, though . . . 5 cents each. No party-week specials for them!

* * *

But speaking of parties . . . you know, there's going to be a lot of them this week-end! Halloween falling on a Saturday night calls for a celebration.

That's why I want to tell you about olives on a plastic tree . . . all set for serving to your guests. The tree is bristling with "branches" and on the tip of each branch there's an olive. Tree fits into the bottle, so all you do is pull it out and pass around! Clever—to say the least! Price per bottle is just 50 cents. Olives are stuffed, by the way!

* * *

While we're on the subject of olives, you don't have to stick to ones that are stuffed with pimento. Now they're stuffing them with almonds and anchovies, and all sorts of tempting things. . . . 75 cents a bottle.

* * *

How about serving some tiny cocktail mushrooms, bottled in sauterne wine, for 59 cents?

* * *

I'm not going to recommend this, because even the name of it makes me feel queer . . . and I am not going to sample it for you! It's rattlesnake meat, done up in supreme sauce and selling at $1.65 a bottle! Want to try it?

AS WE LIVE

Being Stepmother Is No Cinch for Girl

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

Being a stepmother is no easy job. Before a young woman tackles it, she should make sure that she is equal to the strain. That is the advice I am giving this girl:

Hurlock

(Q)—"I am in my early 20s and have been keeping company with a man nearly twice my age. He has a small boy, the son of his first wife by a previous marriage. Recently he was divorced from his second wife mainly because he insisted upon keeping the boy. I am wondering if it would be wise to consider marrying him and whether this boy would be an obstacle to our happiness. What is your advice?"

(A)—My advice to you is to get to know this boy and see how he feels about you before you give any serious consideration to marriage to his stepfather. A small child is easier to win over than an older one but he can be a source of real trouble.

Try also to find out tactfully from your friend why his second wife divorced him because of the child. Did the child resent her as a stepmother or did she feel that her husband put the boy before her or what? There must have been some really serious problem for her to divorce him because of the child.

Then consider your own fitness to handle the job of taking care of the lad. How much experience have you had with children? Have you taken care of younger brothers and sisters have you acted as a baby-sitter, a camp counselor, have you taught Sunday School or school?

If you have had much experience with children, your youth will not be a barrier to your success in handling this one. He doubtless needs the love and care of a mother and this you could give him if he is willing to accept you in that role.

On the other hand, if he does not like you you will do well to give up all thoughts of marriage to this man. You do not want to have your marriage go on the rocks because a child resents you and makes life miserable for you and his stepfather.

Dr. Hurlock is the author of a 64-page booklet. "You and Your Problems." For your copy send 15 cents in coin with a stamped self-addressed envelope to this newspaper.

Why Birks Sterling Prices Are 20% to 30% Lower!

Accurate weighing of silver content reveals the fact that prices for Birks Sterling Flatware, on the average, are 20% to 30% below those of three other Canadian manufacturers. Birks can afford to sell at these lower prices because their sterling flatware is made in their own craft-shops—the largest in Canada—and is sold, direct from maker to consumer.

One initial engraved in Old English or Script on each piece free of charge.

Out-of-town customers are invited to take advantage of this offer. Write Birks Mail Order Dept., Victoria, B.C. Prices listed are for six-piece place-settings, comprising luncheon knife and fork, small teaspoon, salad fork, cream soup spoon, and butter spreader with hollow handle.

A Liasion Between Baking Industry and Housewives

"It's fun being in at the beginning of such an undertaking as ours," Miss Corinne Trerice said yesterday, in her room at the Empress Hotel.

She is director of nutrition for the Bakery Foundation of Canada, which was only established last March, and head of its new consumer service.

"I'm a sort of go-between," she said with a quiet smile," a liaison between the housewives of Canada and the baking industry."

Her job is to make available to the general public facts about bakery foods and to carry back to the industry the requests and comments from the consumers.

From her headquarters at Sixty St. Clair Avenue West, Toronto, Miss Trerice sends out information to consumer groups such as the women's institutes, church groups, home economic teachers, doctors, dentists, publice health department, newspapers and radio stations.

On this tour she is making personal contacts with such groups, gathering and giving information on bakery foods.

Miss Trerice is a graduate of University of Saskatchewan and before taking her present position, worked in dietetics at the Toronto General Hospital and in other parts of eastern Canada. She spent four years with the Canadian Red Cross, in Ontario and New Brunswick, assisting with homemakers' programs.

It is her first visit to Victoria. On this western tour, which includes Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Regina, Calgary, Edmonton, Victoria and Vancouver, she is accompanied by John S. Peach, western representative of the National Council of the Baking Industry.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

How to Improve Profile View Is Important, Too

Q.—"I am pretty from the front view but my profile is almost homely. Most of the directions one sees for makeup consider the front view and not the side view."

A.—You are a wise lady to consider your profile as well as your front view, although, of course, the latter is the more important. Many of the rules which apply to front view are also flattering to the side view. For instance, if you have a big nose you should not pull the hair away from your face. Imagine a woman with a big nose and her hair flat on top of her head (I am thinking in side-view terms now although this goes for front view, also). She needs fluffy or high hair at the top of her head in order to compensate. It is also helpful to pull the hair out on the cheeks a bit, and wear the hair a little longer.

In the case of a receding chin you should adopt an in-between hairdo. If you have too much hair at the top of your head it will make the chin seem even ting it mildly. Anyway, I am going to have pity on you. Here goes: Stand tall with your feet separated. Raise your arms overhead. Keep your arms in this position as you bend to the left as far as comfortable. Raise your trunk and bend to the right. Continue, alternating left and right.

Q.—"I am sorry to bother you with something you have probably written about a hundred times but please print a good waist-reducing exercise in your Friday column. Thank you."

A.—A hundred times is put-smaller. On the other hand, if you have too little it will emphasize this, too. You have to have a pretty good profile to wear a rugged or short hairdo.

Q.—"Can you recommend a lotion or cream that will make the hairs on my arms lie flat? They are light in color but have a tendency to stand out."

A.—I do not know of anything which will make them lie flat which will not be noticeable. However, I think you can train them just like you can eyebrows by applying a cream and stroking them in the direction in which they grow. Put this on at night or during the day when you are at home. If they are light they are probably not unattractive. If they bother you, use a depilatory.

To make wallpaper really washable in quickly soiled spots such as around light switches, sinks, stoves or in children's rooms, brush or spray the area with thin, white shellac. Test on a piece of wallpaper first as the shellac may change the wall's reflective properties, though it won't normally alter the color. Two coats will protect wall decorations such as maps and posters.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Gummed tape is very effective in removing lint from felt hats, jersey dresses and blouses, even rugs.

To quiet a creaking floor, work moist soap into the cracks between the boards.

Don't invite accidents when tweezing your eyebrows by holding a conversation at the same time. Tweezers slip too easily.

3 Cabinet Ministers Head B.C.'s Toll Road Authority

B.C.'s new Toll Highways and Bridges Authority will be headed by Premier W. A. C. Bennett, Finance Minister Einar Gunderson and Public Works Minister P. A. Gaglardi, it was indicated today.

The Authority will build highways and bridges in the province and pay for them from toll collections.

The government, it is understood, does not intend to appoint any outsiders to the Authority. It will be composed only of cabinet ministers, probably with Mr. Gaglardi as chairman.

The Authority, as set up by the Legislature is a Crown corporation permitting from three to seven members.

First bridge to be built under the new system will be the Rosedale-Aggassiz span across the Fraser River. Work is expected to start next summer.

Government survey crews are working on location and approach surveys, and preliminary work is being carried out on design.

The Authority has power to borrow up to $20,000,000.

New Danish Ship Sets Record for West Coast Trip

On her maiden voyage from Copenhagen, the fast, new East Asiatic Company's Ms. Songkhala will berth at Nanaimo today.

She is in Vancouver today, after a record 52-hour run from San Francisco. Songkhala, 10,000 gross, is the world's first commercial ship to be especially designed for a turbo-charge diesel engine. She did 20 knots on her trial runs, and cruises at 17, fully loaded.

Songkala will not touch at Victoria this voyage, but may make port here on her next trip.

Socred Women Chide Council

The Social Credit Women's Auxilliary has written City Council contending the city should have accepted the offer of Mastercraft Agencies, Vancouver, to place benches at bus stops here in return for the privilege of selling advertising space on them.

Mrs. Winifred J. E. Collis, publicity chairman of the auxiliary, explained in the letter that the membership unanimous favor benches at bus stops for the convenience of the public.

The city rejected the Vancouver offer but is now considering the possibility of erecting its own benches, which would be free of advertising.

NEWS BRIEFS

Noted lecturer on drama in Canada, Richard Macdonald will explain the art of make-up at the Arts Centre of Greater Victoria Sunday at 8.15 p.m.

Secretary for the Community Drama Organization for Canada, Mr. Macdonald will also discuss related theatrical problems. Admission is free.

B.C. Court of Appeal here has allowed the appeal of Mrs. Ethel Kraus of Seattle, claiming general damages of approximately $4,600 against Woodward Stores Ltd. A new trial was ordered. Mrs. Kraus, 84, fell in the store Aug. 7, 1951, and broke her left leg. At the original trial the jury found a sales clerk who brushed against Mrs. Kraus guilty of negligence, and recommended general damages be paid.

Fog reduces rather than increases accidents in Victoria.

Despite a thick fog which rolled off the sea Wednesday night and reduced visibility to a few yards on some streets, police report there were no accidents in Victoria during the fog period.

Burglars called by police "young punks" entered four premises in the city during the night, but netted slim returns—$1 in pennies and some candy.

BACK TO HIS FIRST LOVE?

Nancy Still Carries Torch For Sinatra, Friends Say

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Crooner Frank Sinatra and green-eyed film queen Ava Gardner "reluctantly" called it quits today only a few days before the second anniversary of a marriage that began with fireworks and ended the same way.

Neither the hot-tempered singer nor his sultry wife were available for comment following yesterday's announcement that they were separating and that she would seek a divorce.

A brief Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio announcement said the couple had "reluctantly exhausted every effort to reconcile their differences" and could find "no mutual basis on which to continue their marriage."

"Both expressed deep regret and great respect for each other, the announcement said. "Their separation is final and Miss Gardner will seek a divorce."

The couple's explosive romance started while the spindly singer was still married to his Hoboken, N.J., sweetheart of their teen-age days, Nancy, who watched his rise to fame and made the bow ties that became part of his trade mark.

EX-WIFE WAITS

While Nancy stayed home with their three children, Sinatra chased the sultry Ava halfway around the world, once nearly losing her to a Spanish bullfighter, Mario Cabre.

Nancy's friends said at the time that she was "miserable with all his gallivanting, but she's still very much in love with him."

"When nobody else wants him," they said, "she'll take him back."

Today, friends of the crooner's pretty ex-wife were saying the same thing.

Montreal Man Hanged; Killed Wife in Bathtub

MONTREAL (BUP) — A 38-year-old textile company clerk died on the steel gallows of Bordeaux Jail early today for the bathtub slaying of his wife at Cowansville, Que., Feb. 8, 1952.

Kenneth Ford, whose execution was delayed several times by appeals in Quebec and the Supreme Court of Canada, walked slowly and wordlessly to the gallows a few feet from his death cell flanked by guards and a minister.

Co-Sheriff Paul Hurteau said Ford, who killed his wife by hitting her on the head and put her body in a bathtub full of water, appeared calm and said nothing before he was hanged.

The nude body of Ford's pregnant wife, Norma, 28, was found in the bathtub at their Cowansville home. He made a statement to provincial police that he hit her twice with an iron bar during an argument in which she accused him of "going out with other women" and in which he also charged her with infidelity. Ford claimed later in his trial that the statement was incorrect and had been dictated to him by police. He testified in his own defense that his wife died by falling into the bathtub and striking her head against the rim.

Sadler's Wells Attracts Record 28,098 in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Sadler's Wells Ballet Thursday night wound up a three-night stand in Toronto with a performance of "Swan Lake" which drew a paid attendance of 9,475—largest crowd the noted British group has ever drawn.

Paid attendance for the three nights at Maple Leaf Gardens, home of Toronto's National Hockey League Leafs, totaled 28,098. "The Sleeping Beauty" drew 9,332 Tuesday and 9,291 Wednesday.

Sol Hurok, New York impresario who is managing the Sadler's Wells group's North American tour, estimated gross receipts will amount to about $110,000.

"In all my experience, I have never seen so high a box office in a three-night run."

Violetta Elvin danced the leading role Thursday night in "Swan Lake." The sheer grace of her performance won her six curtain calls, which she shared with Jack Field, who danced the role of Prince Siegfried.

WANT FREEDOM

VIENNA (AP)—Vienna newspapers came out today with heavy black bordered front pages to mark the 10th anniversary of the Moscow declaration that promised this occupied land its freedom. More than 2,000,000 Austrian workers stopped work for five minutes after breakfast in mourning for failure of the Big Four powers to keep their promise.

STEADY JOB

STOUGHTON, Sask. (CP)—E. J. Guillimin, councillor in the rural municipality of Tecumseh for the last six years, has been trying unsuccessfully to get himself voted out of office. His last attempt was made in a public letter to ratepayers, begging them to nominate a new councillor.

BRIDGE LESSON

By Oswald Jacoby

Tow should South play the heart suit in today's hand? Technique will not give you the answer to this question, since much depends on how much the West player knows and how quick his bridge reactions happen to be.

South should win the first trick with the ace of diamonds and lead a small heart at once. The average West player will automatically play the low heart and South finesses dummy's nine. This play practically assures the contract as the cards lie.

East wins with the king of hearts, cashes the ten of diamonds, and then returns the ten of clubs. South wins in his own hand with the ace of clubs (in order to save dummy's club entry for later) and leads another heart towards dummy.

When West plays the ten, South may finesse dummy's jack, or he may go up with the ace and ruff a heart return. Either plan will work, for South will manage to draw trumps and get a discard on one of dummy's hearts.

An expert West will see the heart situation as soon as the dummy comes down on the table. When South leads a low heart at the second trick, West should jump right up with the queen. What should South make of this play?

If South thinks that West has the king-queen of hearts, he should win the second trick with dummy's ace of hearts and return a low trump towards his hand. He wins with the king of spades and leads another heart towards dummy. West plays low, and South must guess.

If South guesses the winning play of the nine of hearts, he will be in good shape. If he puts up dummy's jack of hearts, however, he will lose his contract. East wins with the king of hearts, cashes the ten of diamonds and leads a club.

South takes the ace of clubs and hopefully leads the queen of spades—but East refuses the trick. Now dummy has only one entry (the king of clubs), which is not enough to set up a heart and also get back to cash it.

In short, South must guess how West would play if he held the various possible combinations in hearts. Hence South must be a psychologist, not just a good technician, to get the most out of his cards.

IN TUNE WITH THE TIMES

Radio times and programs are furnished by stations and networks and are subject to last minute changes. The Times assumes no responsibility for inaccurate listings.

By BILL PARKER

. . . just a bit of review!

Some of the programs that we heard and enjoyed on Canadian radio: Pacific Pianoforte last Monday with Miss Ursula Malkin; "Defiance," by John Margeson on Vancouver Theatre; CBC Wednesday Night's marvellous presentations of "Elijah" with the Mendelssohn Choir and the Toronto Symphony Orchestra.

Another we liked was Wayne and Shuster's side-splitting tactics on Thursday evening.

One Canadian program that we could have done without occurred late Wednesday evening. "A talk on Shakespeare" by A. L. Rouse. While the subject was extremely interesting, unfortunately the speaker was not.

This week-end. . . .

All the big American stars once more will provide some laughs: Benny, Amos and Andy, McCarthy and Bergen and others.

"Stage 54" on Sunday night will feature "Cold Comfort and Candy Floss" by Len Peterson.

Oh yes, we almost forgot; Dimitri Mitropoulos will conduct the NBC Symphony Orchestra on Sunday afternoon.

HIGHLIGHTS FOR THE WEEK-END

Toronto Symphony Pop's Concert on CBU at 7.30 Friday.

Mart Kenney on CBC Dominion at 7.30 Saturday.

Edgar Bergen and Charles McCarthy on KIRO at 6.30 Sunday.

Standard Symphony Hour on KOMO at 8.30 Sunday.

FRIDAY NIGHT PROGRAMS

CARROLL RIGHTER'S ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1953

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—Getting off with good friends at inexpensive simple pleasures opens the way for that conversation that must take place before real meeting of minds take place again.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Harmonize and fix up your environment early to show off your attractive furnishings. P.M., get away from determined associate whose wishes run counter to yours. Keep c[illegible]l.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Get away from usual occupations; go to interesting places for meals, entertainment that particularly appeal with partners who are alive, active and philosophical.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—Making a determined effort to have a good time at the expense of home duties, job, chores would really bring you down a notch in other's esteem. Instead, fix up your environment more effectively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Fine time for you to get out of your residence to see how the rest of the world lives. Enjoy yourself; make progress toward artistic, amusing goals; fine for fixing car, transportation; keep working.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Irritating communications, comment actually give you a good chance to appreciate family and your own best qualities more. Try to find objects of beauty to fit in your own property.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—You don't have to spend all that time in concern over money matters; you have excellent ideas. Instead make yourself more presentable and have better understanding with pals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Forget yourself today in seeking ways to aid many who are close to you and who look to you for support and who can give you reciprocal assistance at later date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Understanding friends will willingly show you good time to take your mind off secret worries that do not help. Aid in a practical way instead of weakening shut-ins by maudlin sympathy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Keeping busy at many duties and getting them behind you, for free time to give more vital outlets soon to be yours, impresses one who is able to help greatly. Avoid sharp-tongued acquaintance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Keep out of sight of irate official who is distressed by perplexities of his own and tries to push them on to you. Seek new outlets for your abilities and energies.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Your hunches are better than your objective judgment so be still; listen to the voice of your intuition, then you have a good chance to impress all who are able to give you a boost upward.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN SATURDAY . . .

Saturday's child is one of those very interesting youngsters who will have a strong sense of the artistic but little chance to have all that he, or she way crave, unless you train your child early to appreciate and enjoy everything that takes real effort and hard work. Fine chart for any professions requiring careful planning combined with research work and exploration. Social service or philanthropic occupations are also an interesting outlet for this talented offspring of yours.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1953

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) — Listening carefully to what others have to say that can apply to your own deepest needs not only helps in daily routines but also raises prestige with spiritual advisors.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Discussion on with important companion or coworker on where you are both headed best takes place after attending services of your choice in happy, inspiring, friendly atmosphere.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Much conversation with dynamic individual about plasure, how to gain other's confidence should include how better to attend to tedious toil ever present in daily living.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21) — Combine worship with family duties, pleasure with deep contemplation, fun with serious talks. Then you find you have gotten much farther today in reaching upward than you had thought possible.

LEO (July 22 to August 21)—Looking into the world at places where happiness abounds to solve some pressing family problem should include services that bring more peace of mind. Then enjoy yourself at proven pleasures.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22)—You may alienate one close to you by your incessant talk about yourself, unless you use the fine influence present today to discuss mutual aims instead.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)—It is necessary that you get off by yourself, or at church of your choice, to be introspective. Then you see how you can apply early training to meet present practical, religious requirements.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) — Don't miss the idealistic background to your over-all aims in your intense present preoccupation with necessary details. Good friend gives you boost in both directions. Show appreciation.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)—Being tied down to duties at hand just now is what you require, so be grateful for the multitude of obligations to be performed. Keep plugging thus till after your coming birthday.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—This is an unusually good day for you to worship as you see fit and for more detailed understanding of your whole life. Its present channelling, its future best expression is revealed there, now.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Forget all those dramatic ideas, ways of doing things. Listen closely to what expert in mental, spiritual, scientific realms has to say. You learn much for future success.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—All sorts of new plans have been seeping into your consciousness, but it takes a very down-to-earth leader to show you how to make them apply in your life. This is at your door today!

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN SUNDAY . . .

Sunday's child is one of those very astute youngsters who will early display a remarkable talent for delving beneath the surface of any situation and coming up with the facts that have been obscured. Courses in investigating, social service, personnel, laboratory or research vocational training would be excellent, since they would bring to the fore the unique talents with which your progeny is so highly endowed. Never expect your child to tell all—he, or she, just won't—this is good.

A TITLE FIGHT BY ANY NAME!

NEW YORK (UP)—Georgie Araujo of Providence, R.I., and Teddy (Red Top) Davis of Hartford, Conn., will meet tonight at Madison Square Garden in a nationally televised and broadcast "rubber match" for the lightweight championship of New England.

New York doesn't happen to be in New England, but the Massachusetts and New York boxing commissions have sanctioned the 10-rounder as a fight for the NE title—just as they did in 1927 when Jack Sharkey and Jim Maloney of Boston fought at Yankee Stadium for the NE heavy laurels.

Middleweight Ring Ratings Undergo Change

NEW YORK (AP) — The recent flurry of action in the middleweight class, including the title scrap between Carl Bobo Olson and Randy Turpin, has resulted in an overhaul of the ratings of the 160-pound division by Ring magazine. Only a few minor changes were made in the other weights.

Olson's decisive triumph over Turpin gave the division its first champion since Ray Robinson retired December 18, 1952, and left the title open.

Turpin of England was placed in the No. 1 contender's spot, followed by: 2, Rocky Castellani, Cleveland; 3, Joey Giardello, Philadelphia; 4, Gil Turner, Philadelphia; 5, Joey Giambra, Buffalo; 6, Ernie Durando, Bayonne, N.J.; 7, Charles Humez, France; 8, Ralph Tiger Jones, Yonkers, N.Y.; 9, Randy Sandy, New York; 10, Garth Panter, Salt Lake City.

CANADIAN GRID TOUGH, ADMITS STAMP COACH

Snyder found the going tough in his first year in Canadian football and his squad wound up out of the Western Conference playoffs.

He was re-hired before leaving. It is understood the suggestion of giving Snyder another crack at the Stampeders job met with mixed reactions among top team officials.

Snyder could throw little light on the situation.

"They really leave a fellow up in the air. I don't know whether or not I'll be back but I do want the people of Calgary to know I certainly enjoyed coaching their football club.

"Canadian football is a lot tougher than I figured, but I did the best I could all the way."

ALBANY, Calif. (AP) — Determined, a grey colt by Alibhai, raced the third fastest mile ever run in the United States by a two-year-old in winning the one-mile $15,000-added San Francisco Handicap Thursday.

FORMER CHAMP INJURED

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP) — George Rockabye Ross, 32, former Canadian middleweight boxing king, broke his back Thursday in a 45-foot fall from a power pole at nearby reserve. His doctor said he would be in a plaster cast for about six months.

Benson Equals Old Grid Mark

TORONTO (CP) — When young Lorne Benson of Winnipeg Blue Bombers scored six stunning touchdowns Wednesday night he matched a performance by Jackie Stewart of the old Hamilton Tigers four years ago.

Benson, a 22-year-old rookie, led the Bombers to a 43-5 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders in the first game of the Western Inter-provincial Football Union semifinals.

It was Nov. 5, 1949, that Stewart scored six majors to pace Hamilton Tigers to a 39-7 win over Toronto Balmy Beach of the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Their feats probably will go down as records in modern Canadian football history. However, it is hard to say they were all-time records, because records of individual game scoring are not kept.

Leahy to Miss Irish Game With Navy

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) Ailing Frank Leahy will entrust his unbeaten Notre Dame football team to a three-man coaching platoon against Navy's once-defeated Middies here Saturday.

Leahy, who collapsed during the Irish triumph over Georgia Tech last Saturday, Thursday reluctantly agreed to watch his team play Navy over television at his home in nearby Long Beach, Ind.

The Irish, No. 1 team in the Associated Press poll, seek their fifth victory.

Athletic director Edward Moose Krause said Joe McArdle, Bill Earley and Bob McBride will direct the Irish.

Johnny Sain Quits Baseball

WALNUT RIDGE, Ark. (AP) —Johnny Sain, right-handed New York Yankees curveballer, Thursday retired from baseball to operate an automobile agency here.

Sain, who played in the major leagues for 11 years and in organized baseball for six years before that, won the opening game for the Yankees in the 1953 world series in a relief role. His record for last season with the Yankees was 14 victories to seven defeats. He said he mailed his resignation to the Yankees this week.

The 35-year-old hurler got his start with the old Boston Braves in 1942 and played with them until 1951, when he was sold to the Yankees for $50,000.

'Shag' Reveals Interlocking Baseball Plan

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank "Shag" Shaughnessy, president of the International Baseball League, Thursday night outlined plans he has submitted to major league clubs for the addition of eight teams to the present 16-club setup.

Addressing a banquet, Shaughnessy said his plan hinges on finding eight cities capable of building ball parks seating at least 35,000 and getting owners capable of financing a major league club.

He said four teams would be added each of the present leagues which would be subdivided into east and west section.

The system would be for sectional teams to play 22 games against each other—11 at home and 11 away. Teams would also play eight games—four away and four at home—against teams in the other section.

At the end of the season, sectional winners would play each other, with winners meeting in the world series.

Gallery customers got a break in Madison Square Gardens Wednesday at the game between New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks. With only 5,689 fans present, the galleryites were permitted to sit in the mezzanine section.

CIVIC, PROVINCIAL VOTE LISTS CLOSE SATURDAY

Victoria citizens have only one more day to register as voters both for the provincial by-election scheduled for Nov. 24 and the civic elections to be held Dec. 10.

There are two separate voters' lists. Persons who want to vote in both elections must be on both lists.

The place to register as a municipal voter is the city clerk's office at City Hall. Although usually closed on Saturdays, this office will remain open tomorrow from 8.30 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Registration of persons for the provincial by-election can be done at 12 different locations throughout the city, as listed in an advertisement elsewhere in this newspaper.

'TRIUMPH AND TRAGEDY'

U.S. Admiral Opposed Using RN in Pacific

By WINSTON S. CHURCHILL

On Tuesday, Sept. 5 (1944) we sailed once again from the Clyde in the Queen Mary. All the Chiefs of Staff came with me, and met daily, and sometimes twice a day, during our six-day voyage. I wanted, before meeting our American friends, to harmonize and grip the many plans and projects which were now before us.

In Europe Overlord was not only launched, but triumphant. How, when, and where could we strike at Japan, and assure for Britain an honorable share in the final victory there? We had lost as much, if not more, than the United States. Over 160,000 British prisoners and civilian internees were in Japanese hands. For nearly three years we had persisted in the strategy of "Germany First." The time had now come for the liberation of Asia, and I was determined that we should play our full and equal part in it. What I feared most at this stage of the war what the the United States would say in after years, "We came to your help in Europe and you left us alone to finish off Japan." We had to regain on the field of battle our rightful possessions in the Far East, and not have them handed back to us at the peace table.

Our main contribution must obviously be on the sea and in the air. Most of our Fleet was now free to move eastwards, and I resolved that our first demand on our American Allies should be for its full participation in the main assault on Japan. The Royal Air Force should follow as soon as possible after Germany was defeated.

Warns of Thinking Germany Done

I was by no means certain that Germany would be defeated in 1944. It was true that we had had nearly seven weeks of unbroken military success. Paris was liberated and large areas of France had been cleared of the enemy. Our advance in Italy continued. The Soviet offensive, though temporarily halted, might at any moment surge forward again. Greece would soon be free. Hitler's "secret weapons" were almost mastered, and there was no evidence that he had learned how to make the atomic bomb. All these and many other factors induced a belief in our military circle that the Nazis would soon collapse. But I was not convinced. I remembered the German onstaught in March, 1918. At a meeting of the Chiefs of Staff over which I presided on September 8 I accordingly warned them against basing their plans on an imminent German collapse.

Another matter lay heavy on my mind; I was very anxious to forestall the Russians in certain areas of Central Europe. The Hungarians, for instance, had expressed their intention of resisting the Soviet advance, but would surrender to a British force if it could arrive in time. If the Germans either evacuated Italy or retired to the Alps I much desired that Alexander should be enabled to make his amphibious thrust across the Adriatic, seize and occupy the Istrian peninsula, and try to reach Vienna before the Russians. It seemed much too early to start sending his troops to southeast Asia. The C.I.G.S. agreed that there should be no question of withdrawing any of Alexander's troops until Kesselring had been driven across the Plave.

Agreement Reached on Voyage

As a result of our lengthy talks on the voyage we reached agreement about what we should say to our great aliy.

We landed at Halifax on September 10, and reached Quebec the following morning. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt, who were our guests, had arrived just before us, and the President waited at the station to greet me. Once again the Citadel was our home, while the staffs again monopolized the Chateau Frontenac.

On the morning of Wednesday, September 13, we held our first plenary meeting. With me were Brooke, Portal, Cunningham, Dill, Ismay, and Major-General Laycock, who had succeeded Mountbatten as Chief of Combined Operations. The President had with him Leahy, Marshall, King, and Arnold. But this time, alas, there was no Harry Hopkins. He had sent me a telegram just before I left England: "Although I am now feeling much better, I still must take things easy, and I therefore feel that I should not run the risk of a setback in health by attempting to fight the Battle of Quebec on the Plains of Abraham, where better men than I have been killed."

Mr. Roosevelt asked me to open the discussion. I thereupon made a general survey of the war which I had prepared on the voyage. Since our meeting at Cairo the affairs of the United Nations had taken a revolutionary turn for the better. Everything we had touched had turned to gold, and during the last seven weeks there had been an unbroken run of military success.

I was also glad to record that although the British Empire had now entered the sixth year of the war still keeping its position, with a total population, including the dominions and colonies, of only 70,000,000 white people. Our effort in Europe, measured by divisions in the field, was about equal to that of the United States. This was as it should be, and I was proud that we could claim equal partnership with our great ally. Our strength had now reached its peak, whereas our ally's was ever increasing. There was complete confidence in General Eisenhower, and his relations with General Montgomery were of the best, as were those between General Montgomery and General Bradley. The part played by General Bedell Smith in directing and cementing the staffs was of the highest order. An efficient integrated American-British staff machine had been built up, and the battle was being brilliantly exploited.

Blythe Spirit Goes Abroad

The wicked witch who comes calling on Halloween really may be a good fairy in disguise. Instead of asking handouts for themselves, 100 Victoria youngsters will go out collecting for less fortunate children in foreign lands through the Save the Children Fund. Five-year-old Wayne, pictured here, is one of them. He is getting a little early practice with the help of his mother, Mrs. Walter Carter, 1189 Tattersall Drive. (Photo by Irving Strickland.)

INSPIRED BY TIMES STORY

Halloween 'Treats' Will Go to Needy

One hundred Victoria youngsters will be getting a different kind of pleasure from their Halloween rounds Saturday night.

Instead of demanding treats for themselves, they'll be calling for contributions which will make life a little easier for children in other countries who are without good homes, proper clothing and adequate food.

Prompted by a recent article in the Times, telling how children in the eastern United States were putting aside the selfish motive of Halloween and getting more fun through collecting for others, Mrs. W. W. McGill, of the Children's Garden Library, decided the same idea could be introduced here.

Mrs. McGill won ready support from parents she contacted. Children participating in the plan will collect for the "Save the Children Fund." Adults in each district will supervise the collection.

SPREADS OVER WORLD

The Save the Children Fund is a world-wide organization with headquarters in London. It provides help for poorly-clothed and hungry children in 12 countries: Britain, Austria, Germany, Greece, Italy, Syria, Lebanon, France, Malaya, the Sudan, British Somaliland and Korea.

The 100 city youngsters who will be collecting for the fund Halloween night will each carry a properly-marked collection tin, bearing the picture of a sad-looking little girl in a torn dress. The label also carries the words "Save the Children Fund—Please Help" and shows the official motto of the campaign.

SLOGAN IN RHYME

Attached to the bottom of each can will be Mrs. McGill's rhyme:

"Our children need no 'trick or treat,'
Nor do they need for bread;
But there are those with nought to eat—
Let's give to them instead."

Children collecting for the fund will be dressed in traditional Halloween costumes.

And there are no rules preventing them from accepting candies and toffee apples on the side.

PRIZE RULES CHANGED IN CROSSWORD CONTEST

A slight change in the prize rules for the weekly crossword contest, favoring regular subscribers to the Times, goes into effect today. Henceforth the increase of $25 per week in the prize money, when there are no winners, will be added to the bonus for home subscribers instead of to the general prize. See Page 27 for puzzle No. 32 and the new rules.

5 DAYS WITHOUT FRESH MILK

N.Y. Mayor Labels Strike Intolerable

NEW YORK (AP)—Marathon negotiations to end New York's milk strike broke down early today, and Mayon Vincent R. Impellitteri, calling the situation "intolerable," immediately called a mediation meeting at city hall for later in the day.

A deadlock in the wage-hour dispute became apparent at 2.30 a.m. EST when representatives of the AFL Teamsters' Union walked out of the bargaining room.

Thursday, on the basis of optimistic statements issued by negotiators, fleets of big milk trucks rolled toward the city, ready to supply fresh milk for 12,000,000 Metropolitan area consumers in New York and Northern New Jersey. They were stopped, however.

The strike began Sunday when 15,000 drivers and plant workers stopped work over their demand for a $15-weekly wage increase and a 35-hour work week instead of 40 hours.

Fresh milk supplies were exhausted almost immediately in retail stores and restaurants. Milk deposits ran out Tuesday, but plenty of powdered and evaporated milk has been available.

'NO BARS' DRIVE STARTS NEXT WEEK

Public Meeting To Be Called

First major step toward petitioning for a local-option liquor plebiscite here and organizing support for a "no" vote will be taken by the Greater Victoria Citizens' Association next week, M. F. Hunter, president of the association, announced today.

A public meeting to discuss the new provincial liquor act will be held Thursday, Nov. 5, at 8 p.m., in Central Baptist Church.

Mr. Hunter earlier announced the association's intention of campaigning for signature by 35 per cent of the citizens to force a local option vote.

The new act provides that where such votes are held 55 per cent of those voting must say yes before new outlets, as allowed by the act, may be est tablished.

LICENSE AREA

Mr. Hunter said he viewed with great concern an indication given Thursday by Attorney General Robert Bonner that in Vancouver, the downtown area, known provincially as Vancouver Centre, might be constituted as a separate licensing area. (See page 13.)

"We are against subdivision of municipal territory in deciding licensing areas," he said. "In the case of Vancouver, if only the heart of the city was made a licensing area, the great majority of people who live in that city would not have a chance to vote on whether they favored liquor outlets or not. The people with property in the city centre might stand to gain financially so the vote would be decided by special interets.

"We say if new liquor outlets are proposed for any city or municipality, all the people in that city or municipality should be given an opportunity to express their views through balloting. That is the only way to allow a true expression of opinion."

Hearings Open

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet today opened private hearings on the application by Canadian Pacific Airlines for a license to fly scheduled air cargo flights from Montreal to Vancouver via The Pas., Man., and Edmonton.

PEACE PRIZES, FOR MARSHALL, SCHWEITZER

OSLO (AP) — The Norwegian Nobel Institute announced tonight that Albert Schweitzer, Alsatian humanist and medical missionary, has been afarded the Nobel Peace Prize for 1952. Former U.S. state secretary Gen. George C. Marshall has been awarded the prize for 1953.

Schweitzer, 78, lives in French equatorial Africa where he operates a world-famed hospital for natives, which he built with his own money, obtained as fees for world concert tours.

BCE Union Man 'Hopeful'

VANCOUVER (BUP) — The only new word today on the B.C. Electric Co. wage dispute with its electrical employees comes from George Gee, business manager of the IBEW. He said that "the situation definitely looks more hopeful."

The 1,100 IBEW members have voted to walk out if their demands for a 10 per cent pay boost are not met. A strike of the company's electricians would tie up industry.

The union negotiating committee was scheduled to meet with B.C. Electric president Dal Grauer again today.

Unprecedented Ruling Gives Ottawa Concern

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier hinted today that Canada may retaliate against the United States in a squabble concerning operation of a Trans-Canada Air Lines flight to Mexico.

The minister said in a statement that Canadian air transport authorities have "the position of U.S. carriers operating into Canada under review" as a result of a U.S. decision which has forced TCA to cancel plans for the Mexico service.

The new TCA service was scheduled to start Saturday between Montreal, Toronto and Mexico City.

TCA now operates from Montreal and Toronto to Tampa, Fla. It wanted to extend that service to Mexico City. It planned to use the same planes for passengers disembarking at Tampa and for those continuing to Mexico City.

The U.S. civil aeronautics board objected, saying that two types of traffic could not be carried on the one plane. It ruled that TCA should use a separate plane for passengers traveling to Mexico City from Canada and vice versa.

TCA said use of separate planes for flights to Tampa and for flights on to Mexico City would be too costly.

An official of the Canadian air transport board said the U.S. had placed an "unexpectedly strict and literal interpretation" on international air agreements.

He said that at least in one or two instances Canada had been more liberal than the U.S. in granting such air permits.

His department now was reviewing possible parallel cases of U.S. lines operating into or through Canada. One example might be operation of U.S. lines through Edmonton to Alaska.

Mr. Chevrier said this system now is in wide use among international airlines. TCA operated through London and Paris to Dusseldorf, Germany, in this fashion and Air France operated through Montreal to Chicago.

He said he "regretted" the decision of U.S. authorities which had prevented establishment of an international service "which both the Canadian and Mexican governments felt would be in their mutual interests."

By LLOYD BAKER

MEXICO CITY—Just what effect the U.S. ruling against Trans Canada Airlines' new Mexico service will have upon the new Canadian Pacific Air Lines route from Vancouver to Lima was uncertain today.

Traffic on the new TCA line to Mexico City would presumably be available for the Mexico City-Lima hop of the CPAL service. If the TCA link is halted it would affect CPAL business. However, until the matter is further clarified, officials here of both companies are not making any comments.

Bennett Labels Johnson's Attack On Socred Debt Claims 'Ridiculous'

Former premier Byron Johnson's denunciation of the Social Credit government's debt reduction claims was a "straight political" statement apparently issued because of the coming Victoria by-election, Premier W. A. C. Bennett charged today.

In a statement from Kelowna, he said Mr. Johnson's claims are "ridiculous."

Mr. Johnson said last week the so-called Social Credit pay-as-you-go policy and claimed debt reductions of $34,000,000 were made possible through the sound financial policy of the previous government.

The premier said:

"In the former premier's last budget speech on March 4, 1952, he said net debt of B.C. was $191,000,000 and on page 29 of the same budget address it states expenditures for capital purposes from borrowing was $28,350,000.

"My statement that the net debt is now $156,000,000, with a net reduction of $34,000,000 is correct, and it has nothing to do with the sinking funds on hand as stated by the former premier.

"As everyone knows the net debt, and that is what we are talking about, is the gross debt less all sinking funds on hand.

"It is equally ridiculous for Mr. Johnson to say that we use the hospital insurance fund which he says amounted to $3,000,000 to make the reduction in net debt.

"The hospital insurance fund is still intact and it was much larger March 31 last than the amount of $3,000,000 which Mr. Johnson mentioned in his statement as being on hand under the old Liberal government.

"Now Mr. Johnson is again dealing in political matters, perhaps he can explain why his old Liberal government did not file a statement on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway with the Legislature.

"Why the old government kept many orders-in-council under a confidential file and now the present government, despite the fact labor costs are higher than under his government, is securing better figures on highway contracts.

"When I speak in the Victoria by-election I will deal fully with the large increase in debt that came about during the Johnson administration.

"I want to repeat that the early days of coalition under Hon. John Hart was a good government even though the present Liberal Leader Arthur Laing was quoted as saying the coalition government was the second worst in B.C.'s political history."

Advised of Premier Bennett's reply today ex-Premier Johnson said he is preparing a series of articles dealing categorically with just what the financial situation of the province was when he left office. First of these will be issued tomorrow.

VETERAN NEWSMAN'S CRYSTAL BALL

Victoria Still Has Plenty of Opportunities Left, He Says

(Victoria, in the last half-century, may have lost out on the dream it once had to become a great commercial and industrial centre of the Pacific Coast. But that doesn't mean it hasn't great opportunities for development. This is the conclusion of Roy Brown, one of B.C.'s senior journalists. He sums it up in his column in The Vancouver Sun, reprinted herewith).

By ROY BROWN

Victoria Chamber of Commerce wishes to revive the pioneer commercial supremacy of their city. They're starting about 50 years late.

Victoria was a great place—indeed before Vancouver was even heard of. Trading firms which enjoyed international reputations did business there. Robert Ward & Co. helped to establish the first bank, the Bank of B.C. Turner, Beaton & Co. set up branches in Alberni and Nelson. R. P. Rithet & Co. controlled a remunerative business in sealing. Charlie Todd was the first of the great salmon packers. Somehow in the next generation nobody appeared on the scene to take their places.

It was a pet theory of the late Chris Spencer that Victoria took the wrong turning at Confederation, Chris was in favor of full co-operation with Commonwealth aspirations, but he felt Vancouver Island could have existed better by itself, remaining a Crown colony or becoming a separate province, establishing Victoria as a world free port, a manufacturing centre for Oriental goods, in commerce a rival of San Francisco.

* * *

But Victoria seemed always to be let down. In the deal preceding Confederation was an implied understanding for construction of a trans-continental railway that would have its western terminus in Victoria. Even today you may read the occasional hopeful reference to a connection by bridge at Ripple Rock with a Mainland line at Bute Inlet, an impossible scheme as far as practical enterprise is concerned.

When the government of B.C. made a deal for extension of the Canadian Northern, an integral part of the plan was a line of magnificent steamers from Steveston to Victoria. Another project that did not come off. What Victoria did make sure of, in the late nineties, was to anchor the legislative buildings in the Island capital. If this had not happened, Victoria would now be a quiet town of perhaps 30,000.

Today, this early promise of great commercial prosperity cannot be regained. But Victoria has some very interesting alternatives by which to achieve a very substantial growth. I suggest three proposals, as reasonable and fairly sensible.

First, Victoria must realize its objective and mission as a Greater Victoria. The city is small and restricted, with thousands of people earning their living in downtown areas, but making little contribution to the real Victoria because they reside beyond its boundaries.

Second, a studied development of the magnificent suburb of Saanich, where the key to progress is irrigation. Only if tackled by the entire community of Greater Victoria can the money be spent to bring ample water to the lovely areas of Saanich. Hundreds of small farms could be set up on lands now too parched to grow anything. The absurd business of Victoria having to import its milk supply in large measure from the Fraser Valley would be ended.

Third, construction of a great scenic highway to open the West Coast of the Island. Topographically it may be far too expensive to follow the coastline closely, but a few miles inland, parallel to the Pacific beach, there could be constructed a highway through a great forest and lake country to join with the present roads at Alberni. This is almost as necessary comparatively to Victoria as the Fraser Canyon Highway or the Hope-Princeton road is to Vancouver. It would double Victoria's annual tourist traffic.

Them U.S. airline fellers better remember thet whut's sauce fer th' goose, in Mexico, may also be sauce fer th' Gander, in Newfoundland.

5 Canadian Unions Said Red-Ruled

WASHINGTON (CP) — Five Canadian unions were named as Communist-dominated in a report today by a Senate Foreign Relations Sub-Committee.

The report said that since the exposure of the Soviet spy ring in 1946, the strength of the Labor-Progressive Party, Canada's Communist Party, has declined in national, provincial and municipal elections.

Gouzenko Reported Talking Too Much

TORONTO (CP)—The Star said in a newspage story today that Igor Gouzenko has squandered about $100,000 in "high living" since he informed on the Russian spy ring in Canada eight years ago.

A guardian of the former Soviet Embassy clerk is concerned with his conduct in recent months, the story says. He appears over-anxious to talk and "for money will say just about anything whether fact or not."

U.S. Asks Atrocities Charges Heard

PEACE PRIZES, FOR MARSHALL, SCHWEITZER

OSLO (AP) — The Norwegian Nobel Institute announced tonight that Albert Schweitzer, Alsatian humanist and medical missionary, has been awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for 1952. Former U.S. state secretary Gen. George C. Marshall has been awarded the prize for 1953.

Schweitzer, 78, lives in French equatorial Africa where he operates a world-famed hospital for natives, which he built with his own money, obtained as fees for world tours as a violinist.

Canada May Hit Back In U.S.–TCA Dispute

Chevrier Hints at Retaliation After U.S. Blocks TCA's New Air Service to Mexico

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier hinted today that Canada may retaliate against the United States in a squabble concerning operation of a Trans-Canada Air Lines flight to Mexico.

The minister said in a statement that Canadian air transport authorities have "the position of U.S. carriers operating into Canada under review" as a result of a U.S. decision which has forced TCA to cancel plans for the Mexico service.

The new TCA service was scheduled to start Saturday between Montreal, Toronto and Mexico City.

TCA now operates from Montreal and Toronto to Tampa, Fla. It wanted to extend that service to Mexico City. It planned to use the same planes for passengers disembarking at Tampa and for those continuing to Mexico City.

The U.S. civil aeronautics board objected, saying that two types of traffic could not be carried on the one plane. It ruled that TCA should use a separate plane for passengers traveling to Mexico City from Canada and vice versa.

TCA said use of separate planes for flights to Tampa and for flights on to Mexico City would be too costly.

An official of the Canadian air transport board said the U.S. had placed an "unexpectedly strict and literal interpretation" on international air agreements.

He said that at least in one or two instances Canada had been more liberal than the U.S. in granting such air permits.

His department now was reviewing possible parallel cases of U.S. lines operating into or through Canada. One example might be operation of U.S. lines through Edmonton to Alaska.

Mr. Chevrier said this system now is in wide use among international airlines. TCA operated through London and Paris to Dusseldorf, Germany, in this fashion and Air France operated through Montreal to Chicago.

He said he "regretted" the decision of U.S. authorities which had prevented establishment of an international service "which both the Canadian and Mexican governments felt would be in their mutual interests."

MEXICO CITY—Just what effect the U.S. ruling against Trans Canada Airlines' new Mexico service will have upon the new Canadian Pacific Air Lines route from Vancouver to Lima was uncertain today.

Traffic on the new TCA line to Mexico City would presumably be available for the Mexico City-Lima hop of the CPAL service. If the TCA link is halted it would affect CPAL business. However, until the matter is further clarified, officials here of both companies are not making any comment.

'NO BARS' DRIVE STARTS NEXT WEEK

First major step toward petitioning for a local-option liquor plebiscite here and organizing support for a "no" vote will be taken by the Greater Victoria Citizens' Association next week, M. F. Hunter, president of the association, announced today.

A public meeting to discuss the new provincial liquor act will be held Thursday, Nov. 5, at 8 p.m., in Central Baptist Church.

Mr. Hunter earlier announced the association's intention of campaigning for signature by 35 per cent of the citizens to force a local option vote.

The new act provides that where such votes are held 55 per cent of those voting must say "yes" before new outlets, as allowed by the act, may be established.

LICENSE AREA

Mr. Hunter said he viewed with great concern an indication given Thursday by Attorney General Robert Bonner that in Vancouver, the downtown area, known provincially as Vancouver Centre, might be constituted as a separate licensing area. (See page 13.)

"We are against subdivision of municipal territory in deciding licensing areas," he said. "In the case of Vancouver, if only the heart of the city was made a licensing area, the great majority of people who live in that city would not have a chance to vote on whether they favored liquor outlets or not. The people with property in the city centre might stand to gain financially so the vote would be decided by special interests.

"We say if new liquor outlets are proposed for any city or municipality, all the people in that city or municipality should be given an opportunity to express their views through balloting. That is the only way to allow a true expression of opinion."

BCE Talks More Hopeful

VANCOUVER (BUP) — The only new word today on the B.C. Electric Co. wage dispute with its electrical employees comes from George Gee, business manager of the IBEW. He said that "the situation definitely looks more hopeful."

The union negotiating committee was scheduled to meet with B.C. Electric president Dal Grauer again today.

CANBERRA (Reuters)—The government Gazette today formally announced Australia's ratification of the International Wheat Agreement.

Blythe Spirit Goes Abroad

The wicked witch who comes calling on Halloween really may be a good fairy in disguise. Instead of asking handouts for themselves, 100 Victoria youngsters will go out collecting for less fortunate children in foreign lands through the Save the Children Fund. Halloween 'Treats' Will Go to Needy

One hundred Victoria youngsters will be getting a different kind of pleasure from their Halloween rounds Saturday night.

Instead of demanding treats for themselves, they'll be calling for contributions which will make life a little easier for children in other countries who are without good homes, proper clothing and adequate food.

Prompted by a recent article in the Times, telling how children in the eastern United States were putting aside the selfish motive of Halloween and getting more fun through collecting for others, Mrs. W. W. McGill, of the Children's Garden Library, decided the same idea could be introduced here.

Mrs. McGill won ready support from parents she contacted. Children participating in the plan will collect for the "Save the Children Fund." Adults in each district will supervise the collection.

The Save the Children Fund is a world-wide organization with headquarters in London. It provides help for poorly-clothed and hungry children in 12 countries: Britain, Austria, Germany, Greece, Italy, Syria, Lebanon, France, Malaya, the Sudan, British Somaliland and Korea.

The 100 city youngsters who will be collecting for the fund Halloween night will each carry a properly-marked collection tin, bearing the picture of a sad-looking little girl in a torn dress. The label also carries the words "Save the Children Fund—Please Help" and shows the official motto of the campaign:

Attached to the bottom of each can will be Mrs. McGill's rhyme:

"Our children need no 'trick or treat,'
Nor do they need for bread;
But there are those with nought to eat—
Let's give to them instead."

Children collecting for the fund will be dressed in traditional Halloween costumes.

And there are no rules preventing them from accepting candies and toffee apples on the side.

Civic Leaders Ask For Vote Authority

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C. municipalities today decided to ask the provincial government to amend the Shops Regulation and Weekly Half Holiday Act to permit a six-day shopping week.

A resolution asking for the amendment, presented by the City of Vancouver, was unanimously adopted at the annual convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities here.

The move does not mean that all the municipalities favor the six-day shopping week, but would give any municipality the power to hold a plebiscite asking citizens if they favored the longer shopping week.

Request for the amendment contained a rider asking that if the six-day week is allowed a 40-hour week be guaranteed to employees.

The act now permits only a five-and-a-half-day shopping week. In Vancouver and some other municipalities local regulations enforce closing for another half day.

'TRIUMPH AND TRAGEDY'

U.S. Admiral Opposed Using RN in Pacific

By WINSTON S. CHURCHILL

On Tuesday, Sept. 5 (1944) we sailed once again from the Clyde in the Queen Mary. All the Chiefs of Staff came with me, and met daily, and sometimes twice a day, during our six-day voyage. I wanted, before meeting our American friends, to harmonize and grip the many plans and projects which were now before us.

In Europe Overlord was not only launched, but triumphant. How, when, and where could we strike at Japan, and assure for Britain an honorable share in the final victory there? We had lost as much, if not more, than the United States. Over 160,000 British prisoners and civilian internees were in Japanese hands. For nearly three years we had persisted in the strategy of "Germany First." The time had now come for the liberation of Asia, and I was determined that we should play our full and equal part in it. What I feared most at this stage of the war what the the United States would say in after years,

CIVIC, PROVINCIAL VOTE LISTS CLOSE SATURDAY

Victoria citizens have only one more day to register as voters both for the provincial by-election scheduled for Nov. 24 and the civic elections to be held Dec. 10.

There are two separate voters' lists. Persons who want to vote in both elections must be on both lists.

The place to register as a municipal voter is the city clerk's office at City Hall. Although usually closed on Saturdays, this office will remain open tomorrow from 8.30 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Registration of persons for the provincial by-election can be done at 12 different locations throughout the city, as listed in an advertisement elsewhere in this newspaper.

Bennett Labels Johnson's Attack On Socred Debt Claims 'Ridiculous'

Former premier Byron Johnson's denunciation of the Social Credit government's debt reduction claims was a "straight political" statement apparently issued because of the coming Victoria by-election, Premier W. A. C. Bennett charged today.

In a statement from Kelowna, he said Mr. Johnson's claims are "ridiculous."

Mr. Johnson said last week the so-called Social Credit pay-as-you-go policy and claimed debt reductions of $34,000,000 were made possible through the sound financial policy of the previous government.

The premier said:

"In the former premier's last budget speech on March 4, 1952, he said net debt of B.C. was $191,000,000 and on page 29 of the same budget address it states expenditures for capital purposes from borrowing was $28,350,000.

"My statement that the net debt is now $156,000,000, with a net reduction of $34,000,000 is correct, and it has nothing to do with the sinking funds on hand as stated by the former premier.

"As everyone knows the net debt, and that is what we are talking about, is the gross debt less all sinking funds on hand.

"It is equally ridiculous for Mr. Johnson to say that we use the hospital insurance fund which he says amounted to $3,000,000 to make the reduction in net debt.

"The hospital insurance fund is still intact and it was much larger March 31 last than the amount of $3,000,000 which Mr. Johnson mentioned in his statement as being on hand under the old Liberal government.

"Now Mr. Johnson is again dealing in political matters, perhaps he can explain why his old Liberal government did not file a statement on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway with the Legislature.

"Why the old government kept many orders-in-council under a confidential file and how the present government, despite the fact labor costs are higher than under his government, is securing better figures on highway contracts.

"When I speak in the Victoria by-election I will deal fully with the large increase in debt that came about during the Johnson administration.

"I want to repeat that the early days of coalition under Hon. John Hart there was good government even though the present Liberal Leader Arthur Laing was quoted as saying the coalition government was the second worst in B.C.'s political history."

Advised of Premier Bennett's reply today ex-Premier Johnson said he is preparing a series of articles dealing categorically with just what the financial situation of the province was when he left office. First of these will be issued tomorrow.
